Dislocating the Frontier Deborah Bird Rose, Richard Davis, 2006-03-01 The frontier is one of the most pervasive concepts underlying the production of national identity in Australia Recently it has become a highly contested domain in which visions of nationhood are argued out through analysis of frontier conflict DISLOCATING THE FRONTIER departs from this contestation and takes a critical approach to the frontier imagination in Australia The authors of this book work with frontier theory in comparative and unsettling modes The essays reveal diverse aspects of frontier images and dreams as manifested in performance decolonising domains language and cross cultural encounters

'Every Mother's Son is Guilty' Chris Owen, 2016 This is a marvellous contribution by Chris Owen to the understanding of the role the Western Australian police force played in the colonial expansion into the Kimberley district of Western Australia Senator Patrick Dodson Yawuru Elder Chris Owen provides a compelling account of policing in the Kimberley district from 1882 when police were established in the district until 1905 when Dr Walter Roth's controversial Royal Commission into the treatment of Aboriginal people was released Owen's achievement is to take elements of all the pre existing historiography and test them against a rigorous archival investigation In doing so a fuller understanding of the complex social economic and political changes occurring in Western Australia during the period are exposed The policing of Aboriginal people changed from one of protection under law to one of punishment and control The subsequent violence of colonial settlement and the associated policing and criminal justice system that developed often of questionable legality was what Royal Commissioner Roth termed a brutal and outrageous state of affairs Every Mother's Son is Guilty is a significant contribution to Australian and colonial criminal justice history Subject History Aboriginal Studies Criminal Justice policing

Long History, Deep Time Ann McGrath, Mary Anne Jebb, 2015-08-17 The vast shape shifting continent of Australia enables us to take a long view of history We consider ways to cross the great divide between the deep past and the present Australia's human past is not a short past so we need to enlarge the scale and scope of history beyond 1788 In ways not so distant these deeper times happened in the same places where we walk today Yet they were not the same places having different surfaces ecologies and peoples Contributors to this volume show how the earth and its past peoples can wake us up to a sense of place as history as a site of both change and continuity This book ignites the possibilities of what the spaces and expanses of history might be Its authors reflect upon the need for appropriate feasible timescales for history pointing out some of the obstacles encountered in earlier efforts to slice human time into thematic categories Time and history are considered from the perspective of physics archaeology literature western and Indigenous philosophy Ultimately this collection argues for imaginative new approaches to collaborative histories of deep time that are better suited to the challenges of the Anthropocene Contributors to this volume including many leading figures in their respective disciplines consider history's temporality and ask how history might expand to accommodate a chronology of deep time Long histories that incorporate humanities science and Indigenous knowledge may produce deeper meanings of the worlds in which we live

Indigenous Participation in Australian Economies Ian Keen, 2010-12-01 This volume seeks to contribute to the body of anthropological and historical studies of Indigenous participation in the Australian colonial and post colonial economy It arises out of a panel on this topic at the annual conference of the Australian Anthropological Society held jointly with the British and New Zealand anthropological associations in Auckland in December 2008 The panel was organised in conjunction with an Australian Research Council ARC Linkage Grant project on Indigenous participation in Australian economies involving the National Museum of Australia as the partner organisation and the School of Archaeology and Anthropology at The Australian National University The chapters of the volume bring new theoretical analyses and empirical data to bear on a continuing discussion about the variety of ways in which Indigenous people in Australia have been engaged in the colonial and post colonial economy Contributions cover settler capitalism concepts of property on the frontier Torres Strait Islanders in the mainland economy the pastoral industry in the Kimberley doggers in the Western Desert bean and pea picking on the South Coast of New South Wales attitudes to employment in general in western New South Wales relations of Aboriginal people to mining in the Pilbara and relations with the uranium mine and Kakadu National Park in the Top End The chapters also contribute to discussions about theoretical and analytical frameworks relevant to these kinds of contexts and bring critical perspectives to bear on current issues of development In the March 2012 edition of Oceania Diane Austin Broos
