Research and Supervision in Mathematics and Science Education John A. Malone, Bill Atweh, Jeffrey Northfield, Jeff Northfield, 2013-11-26 Research and Supervision in Mathematics and Science Education provides student researchers and their supervisors with information about both the essentials of planning conducting reporting and publishing qualitative research and the characteristics of quality supervision It is focused primarily for postgraduate research students in mathematics and science education and their supervisors It will also be of interest to students and faculty in other disciplines that use educational and sociological research paradigms The volume builds on two phenomena of recent years first the increasing momentum of postgraduate research in mathematics and science education and second the resulting need of those involved for knowledge about doing research and about engaging in quality supervision The decision to address both research and supervision in one volume is a response to the fact that faculty who supervise postgraduate research often are in need of resources covering not only aspects of project and thesis supervision but also the knowledge to assist students in research design especially in the qualitative field Drawing on recent research and practice the authors of the chapters in this book illustrate approaches and strategies that have been used successfully with and by postgraduate students The book also has a strong future orientation describing how postgraduate supervision and research will change as more and more students gain access to and make use of the vast array of technological resources now available A necessary and unique addition to books in the field of postgraduate research and supervision this volume s particular appeal stems from its practical approach its creative future perspective and the wide generalizability of the thinking and ideas it presents The

A Passion for Learning Philip A. Cusick,2005-04-03 In his engaging new book Philip Cusick puts the personal back into education by examining the educational experiences of seven eminent American Benjamin Franklin Abraham Lincoln Jane Addams W E B Du Bois Eleanor Roosevelt J Robert Oppenheimer and Dorothy Day Devoting a chapter to each Cusick describes what they learned how they learned what they called their education and how they used education to establish their place in the world More than providing just a series of personal histories Cusick argues that the discourse about education has turned into a discourse about educational institutions But his descriptions show that one can talk about education without talking about schools talk about learning without talking about the state curriculum talk about achievement without talking about test scores and talk about accountability without talking about teacher preparation

Conversations for Creative Learning Gloria Latham, Robyn Ewing, 2017-12-06 This book builds on conversations between the author, educators, and other experts in the field, including authors, illustrators, and teachers, to explore the benefits of discussions around quality literature within a classroom context that exercises the imagination and generates new ideas and discoveries. The book focuses on a range of strategies that can be utilized to reimagine literacy learning in a 21st-century context, including parent and teacher talk, active listening, fostering student-driven questions, building vocabulary and imagery, and metacognitive talk. These are argued to have a hugely beneficial impact on how children learn to solve problems, engage in complex thought processes, negotiate meaning, as well as learning how to wonder, explore, create, and defend ideas. The book also defends the importance of parents, teachers, and academics as storytellers using their bodies and voices as instruments of engagement and power. It will make compelling reading for students, teachers, and researchers working in the fields of education and sociology, particularly those with an interest in creative methods for improving literacy. Rhetoric, History, and Women's Oratorical Education David Gold, Catherine L. Hobbs, 2013-05-02 Historians of rhetoric have long worked to recover women's education in reading and writing but have only recently begun to explore women's speaking practices from the parlor to the platform to the varied types of institutions where women learned elocutionary and oratorical skills in preparation for professional and public life. This book fills an important gap in the history of rhetoric and suggests new paths for the way histories may be told in the future, tracing the shifting arc of women's oratorical training as it develops from forms of eighteenth-century rhetoric into institutional and extrainstitutional settings at the end of the nineteenth century and diverges into several distinct streams of community embodied theory and practice in the twentieth. Treating key rhetors, genres, settings, and movements from the early republic to the present, these essays collectively challenge and complicate many previous claims made about the stability and development of gendered public and private spheres, the decline of oratorical culture, and the limits of women's oratorical forms such as elocution and parlor rhetorics, and women's responses to rhetorical constraints on their public speaking. Enriching our understanding of women's oratorical education and practice, this cutting-edge work makes an important contribution to scholarship in rhetoric and communication.
