The Educational and Occupational Attainment Process Yukiko Inoue,1999 The Educational and Occupational Attainment Process established a variation of the 1969 Wisconsin model to address the nature of attainment and to satisfactorily answer whether the process of attainment is the same for women as men and whether socioeconomic status plays a similar role for women in the process when examined from the same sociological perspectives as men A sample was drawn from the National Longitudinal Study of the High School Class of 1972 The author used path analysis to estimate the direct and indirect effects implied by the proposed model and the effects of personal background characteristics were hypothesized to be manifested indirectly mediated by high school academic performance and significant others parents teachers and peers influence This study revealed that the attainment process is basically the same for men and women and that privilege of social origins is just as important for women as men Like the Wisconsin model estimation the author shows that the key to occupational attainment is educational attainment indicating a strong link between educational and occupational attainment in modern American society Her results punctuate the paradox of women s superior high school performance yet lower levels of educational and occupational aspirations and educational attainment than men This provides considerable evidence that the development and the maintenance of educational ambitions in high school experiences exert a pronounced influence on an individual s success chances in the adult and occupational world ￼￼￼￼ Yukiko Inoue-Smith, ￼￼￼￼,2012-06-07 The concept of a universal human nature suggests that American scholars and American readers of Japanese literature may interpret the elements in Japanese tanka based on emotions and on meanings attached to natural images that are common to all of humanity It is hoped that readers will experience this ancient style of Japanese poetry in such a way that they are inspired to write their own tanka poems Such is one of the purposes of A Shawl of Mist Another purpose of this book is to share essays written to accompany and complement the tanka poems The short essays included here provide practical thoughts based on the author s long years of personal and professional experiences studying reading teaching thinking and especially cherishing each day of living in Japan the United States and Guam Resources in Education ,1999-10 Teaching with Educational Technology in the 21st Century: The Case of the Asia-Pacific Region Inoue, Yukiko,Bell, Suzanne,2005-12-31 With the emphasis on faculty experiences and efforts to enhance higher learning in less developed regions Teaching with Educational Technology in the 21st Century The Case of the Asia Pacific Region is a comprehensive study of teaching applications involving educational technology The book encourages collaboration across geographical borders to promote information literacy facilitate the learning process and to establish a greater infusion of technology throughout the region Intended as a guide Teaching with Educational Technology in the 21st Century The Case of the Asia Pacific Region looks clearly at the impact of distance education programs articulation issues faculty technical competency levels and offers solutions for policy makers and educators to remain current with basic technical applications It explains how education is no longer confined to a geographical space and reaches out as a model to all interested in promoting quality higher education across geographical and cultural borders Career Development and Counseling Steven D. adaptation process in Spain are systematically presented in five chapters introduced by real life histories of selected respondents drawn by the study's ethnographic module. Systematic comparisons with results from the United States show a number of surprising similarities in the adaptation of children of immigrants in both countries as well as differences marked by contrasting experiences of discrimination, self-identities and ambition. Resources in Women's Educational Equity, 1980. In the past few years many career theorists have noted the dearth of literature in the area of career development in childhood and adolescence. A growing need for integrating theory and research on the early stages of vocational development within a systemic life span developmental approach has been articulated. This volume, the first book dedicated to career development of children and adolescents, provides a broad and comprehensive overview of the current knowledge about the key career processes that take place in this age group. Each of the eighteen chapters represents an in-depth examination of a specific aspect of career development with a focus on integrating modern career theory and ongoing research and further developing theory-practice connections in understanding child and adolescent career behaviour. Twenty-six authors, leading experts from eight countries, provide a state-of-the-art summary of the current thinking in the field and outline directions for future empirical work and practice. The Meritocracy Myth, Stephen J. McNamee, Robert K. Miller, 2004-05-03. This book challenges the widely held American belief in meritocracy that people get out of the system what they put into it, based predominately on individual merit. The book identifies a variety of factors that suppress, neutralize or negate the effects of merit, creating non-merit barriers to individual mobility. Visit our website for sample chapters. Levesque, 2011-09-05. The Encyclopedia of Adolescence breaks new ground as an important central resource for the study of adolescence. Comprehensive in breadth and textbook in depth, the Encyclopedia of Adolescence with entries presented in easy-to-access A to Z format serves as a reference repository of knowledge in the field as well as a frequently updated conduit of new knowledge long before such information trickles down from research to standard textbooks. By making full use of Springer's print and online flexibility, the Encyclopedia is at the forefront of efforts to advance the field by pushing and creating new boundaries and areas of study that further our understanding of adolescents and their place in society. Substantively, the Encyclopedia draws from four major areas of research relating to adolescence. The first broad area includes research relating to Self Identity and Development in Adolescence This area covers research relating to identity from early adolescence through emerging adulthood basic aspects of development e g biological cognitive social and foundational developmental theories In addition this area focuses on various types of identity gender sexual civic moral political racial spiritual religious and so forth The second broad area centers on Adolescents Social and Personal Relationships This area of research examines the nature and influence of a variety of important relationships including family peer friends sexual and romantic as well as significant nonparental adults The third area examines Adolescents in Social Institutions This area of research centers on the influence and nature of important institutions that serve as the socializing contexts for adolescents These major institutions include schools religious groups justice systems medical fields cultural contexts media legal systems economic structures and youth organizations Adolescent Mental Health constitutes the last major area of research This broad area of research focuses on the wide variety of human thoughts actions and behaviors relating to mental health from psychopathology to thriving Major topic examples include deviance violence crime pathology DSM normalcy risk victimization disabilities flow and positive youth development

Contemporary Perspectives on Social Capital in Educational Contexts RoSusan D. Bartee, Phillis George, 2019-05-01 The currency of social capital serves as an important function given the capacity to generate external access getting to and internal accountability getting through for individuals and institutions alike Pierre Bourdieu 1986 defines social capital as the aggregate of the actual or potential resources which are linked to possession of a durable network of more or less institutionalized relationships of mutual acquaintance and recognition or in other words to membership in a group p 251 Social capital contains embedded resources as a tool for manifesting opportunities and options among individuals and groups Inevitably the aforementioned opportunities and options become reflective of the depth and breadth of access and accountability experienced by the individual and institution As educational stakeholders we must consistently challenge ourselves with the question How do K 12 schools and colleges and universities accomplish shared egalitarian goals of achieving access and accountability Such goals become fundamental toward ensuring students matriculating through K 12 and higher education irrespective of background are provided the caliber of education and schooling experience to prepare them for economic mobility and social stability To that end the volume Contemporary Perspectives on Social Capital in Educational Contexts 2019 as part of the book series Contemporary Perspectives on Capital in Educational Contexts offers a unique opportunity to explore social capital as a currency conduit for creating external access and internal accountability for K 12 and higher education The commonalities of social capital emerging within the 12 chapters of the volume include the following 1 Social Capital as Human Connectedness 2 Social Capital as Strategic Advocacy 3 Social Capital as Intentional Engagement and 4 Social Capital as Culturally Responsive Leadership Thus it becomes important for institutions of education i e secondary postsecondary continuing and individuals to assume efforts with intentionality and deliberateness to promote access and accountability scholarship mentoring students in their research and effectively teaching are vital elements in our professional and personal growth. However, any one of these could be a full-time job in itself. To excel in each role, it is essential for faculty members to reflect daily on our work. What is the role of comparisons in this reflection? Though our colleagues' successes may suggest to us possibilities in our own work that we didn't know existed, there is a danger that our neighbors' flowers will always seem more beautiful than our own. We should let comparisons with others suggest new approaches to our goals but never focus on comparing our outcomes, successes, and failures with those of other people. Instead, we should focus on steadily improving our own levels of mastery of skills in scholarship and in work with students. In American academia, where both faculty members and students are ethnically and culturally diverse, such that we will often find our assumptions challenged, reflective thinking is even more essential than in a culturally homogeneous environment. Hence, reflective, systematic approaches to daily practice in reading, teaching, and writing are powerful survival tactics and are likely to sustain one's vitality and productivity as a member of the academy.

Gender-Specific Inequalities in the Education System and the Labor Market Pia Blossfeld, Magdalena Pratter, Wilfred Uuk, 2023-08-15

Two remarkable trends concerning women's educational and labor market outcomes in modern Western societies can be observed. Firstly, in recent decades, women have been catching up with and have even overtaken men in educational attainment. Secondly, women continue to choose educations and occupations in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) less often than men. This Research Topic will focus upon these gender-specific trends with a view to analyzing some of their causes and consequences.
