

The background of the image features a stack of several old, heavily worn coins. The coins are dark and show significant signs of age, including rust and discoloration. They are resting on a piece of aged, yellowed paper that has handwritten text in cursive script. To the right of the coins, there is a printed circular emblem or seal, partially visible, which includes the word "SOLD" and some heraldic symbols. The overall aesthetic is historical and antique.

Bairoch,1995-09 Paul Bairoch deflates twenty commonly held myths about economic history Among these myths are that free trade and population growth have historically led to periods of economic growth and that colonial powers in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries became rich through the exploitation of the Third World Bairoch shows that these beliefs are based on insufficient knowledge and wrong interpretations of the history of economies of the United States Europe and the Third World and he re examines the facts to set the record straight Bairoch argues that until the early 1960s the history of international trade of the developed countries was almost entirely one of protectionism rather than a Golden Era of free trade and he reveals that in fact past periods of economic growth in the Western World correlated strongly with protectionist policy He also demonstrates that developed countries did not exploit the Third World for raw materials during the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries as some economists and many politicians have held Among the many other myths that Bairoch debunks are beliefs about whether colonization triggered the Industrial Revolution the effects of the economic development of the West on the Third World and beliefs about the 1929 crash and the Great Depression Bairoch's lucid prose makes the book equally accessible to economists of every stripe as well as to historians political scientists and other social scientists
