shows how some countries have graduated from transition to integration through their efforts to join the European Union EU It discusses the costs and benefits of the eastern enlargement of the EU The specific experiences of German unification the Soviet Union s disintegration and Russia s complex reforms are examined as are the specific issues that need to be addressed in the Balkans The book concludes by indicating how the expanding EU could help the poor performers through inclusion in a continent wide integrated economic area Trade, Development and Structural Change Anca M. Voicu, Somnath

Sen, Inmaculada Martinez-Zarzoso, 2018-05-30 This book examines the evolution of trade and trade patterns in Central and Eastern European countries CEEC and assesses the implications of these patterns on structural change and economic development within transition economies Taking the fall of the Iron Curtain in 1989 as a starting point the authors discuss the transition of former communist CEE countries from centrally planned to market driven economies arguing that trade was the primary engine for the economic growth and transition process they experienced The chapters in this book incorporate the results of previous studies some of which are based on original research conducted by the authors dedicated to the integration process of international and European trade More importantly the authors look at the broader aspects of structural change and economic development indeed the whole process of economic transformation Thus the book moves well beyond the core trade and growth framework to look at technological progress foreign investment institutional development and structural change in Central and Eastern European countries The East European Economy in Context David Turnock, 1997 Since 1989 the former communist countries of Eastern Europe have witnessed a profound and dramatic upheaval Turnock examines the transition from Communist to free market economies both within and between the states of Eastern Europe Remaking Eastern Europe — On the Political Economy of Transition J.M. Van

Brabant, 2012-12-06 This compact volume is meant as a modest contribution to the ongoing debate on how to transform in particular the radically reforming Eastern European economies into more productive sociopolitical organizations Although my main focus here is on the economics of reform and east west assistance I have tried to embed the multiple technical aspects of restructuring such a resource allocation into the context of remaking Eastern Europe That the volume coincides with the seminal transformations of the communist countries of Eastern Europe is of course not fortuitous But I shall have much less to say about the political transitions from communism to parliamentary democracy except the ways in which the latter may bolster or hinder the hoped for economic mutations In taking stock of where I stand on the issue of radical reform of planned economics in general and the CMEA in particular both still moving targets I have benefited greatly from participation in formal and informal conferences on economic reform The product has also profited from many informal discussions and exchanges of views among friends and colleagues including those entrusted with and purely interested in efforts on the overall topic of the study launched from within the broad context of the United Nations my at times reluctant employer Lessons from the Economic Transition Salvatore Zecchini, 2013-12-01 An attentive reader embarking on this book might wonder what the economic transition to which the title refers might be In this century almost all countries have gone through periods of economic transition but which period of economic history can claim to embody the notion or to represent the era of the transition Definitely no country or group of countries has experienced anything comparable to the economic upheavals that the fall of communism has brought about in a large portion of the world in just three years 1989 to 1991 No other transition to date has prompted more interest and more studies among economists academics and policy makers than has the transformation of centrally planned economies into market based systems It is this transformation that has come to define the transition Early in the transformation process in November 1990 with the support of the Centre for Co operation with the Economies in Transition CCET I launched a conference to examine the challenges faced by these countries About six years have gone by and a new economic landscape has emerged in that part of the world The difficulties in transforming these economies have exceeded all expectations and economic performances have varied considerably across countries The time has come therefore to make a first evaluation of progress and problems with a view to extracting useful policy lessons to guide policy makers in successfully completing the transition in the near future
