becoming one Keyness in Texts Marina Bondi, Mike Scott, 2010-01-01 This is corpus linguistics with a text linguistic focus The volume concerns lexical inequality the fact that some words and phrases share the quality of being key and thereby reflect or promote important themes in some textual contexts while others do not The patterning of words which differ in their centrality to text meaning is of increasing interest to corpus linguistics At the same time software resources are yielding increasingly more detailed ways of identifying and studying the linkages between key words and phrases in text databases This volume brings together work from some of the leading researchers in this field It presents thirteen studies organized in three sections the first containing a series of studies exploring the nature of keyness itself then a set of five studies looking at keyness in specific discourse contexts and then three studies with an educational focus Edited by two central figures in the development of keyword analysis and with contributions from leading specialists in the field this unique collection brings together a wide range of insights into how keyword analysis can contribute both to linguistic and cultural analysis and to language education It deserves a place on the bookshelves of anyone with an interest in these areas Christopher Tribble King's College London This is a fascinating volume addressing both methodological and theoretical questions in the study of keywords It pushes forward the exploration of the nature of keyness and the interpretation of keywords in their textual contexts An inspiring contribution to a central area of corpus linguistics Michaela Mahlberg University of Nottingham

Hardy James Gow, 1897 Managers and Management in West Germany Peter Lawrence, 2017-07-14 Originally published in 1980 but re issued now with a new preface this book looks at the German manager from a sociological viewpoint and explains why German management has been so successful and highlights the key factors in the training of the German manager and the attitudes and skills he develops in his work The views and aspirations of German managers themselves are discussed in the light of the author's first hand acquaintance with German industry Throughout there is comparison with the UK USA and other European countries The manufacturing function is the subject of a special examination It is argued that although German management has adopted some American practices the ethic is strictly German and an essential part of the German character Bilingual Cognition A. Mattila, 2024-11-01 This book examines legal language as a language for special purposes evaluating the functions and characteristics of legal language and the terminology of law Using examples drawn from major and lesser legal languages it examines the major legal languages themselves beginning with Latin through German French Spanish and English This second edition has been fully revised updated and enlarged A new chapter on legal Spanish takes into account the increasing importance of the language and a new section explores the use in legal circles of the two variants of the Norwegian language All chapters have been thoroughly updated and include more detailed footnote referencing The work will be a valuable resource for students researchers and practitioners in the areas of legal history and theory comparative law semiotics and linguistics It will also be of interest to legal translators and terminologists Mission Investing Tizian M. A.

Fritz, 2024-02-16 This thesis examines the concept of mission investing MI and thus the role the mission of nonprofit organizations NPO plays when fungible financial assets are invested In contrast to the traditional separation of programming and investment policies MI stands for the explicit inclusion of the organization s mission into financial decisionmaking Although initially developed in the context of grantmaking foundations the concept of MI can be applied to any NPO with fungible assets NPO as mission driven organizations differ substantially from regular for profit companies in the way they evaluate organizational performance Therefore questions regarding the assessment of desirability and the evaluation of investment opportunities arise This thesis consists of four articles which all answer a different sub question regarding the concept and logic of MI and thus adds to a more profound understanding of nonprofit investment management and complements existing theoretical analyses with empirical findings on value based portfolio selection In their exploratory approach these four essays contribute to a holistic understanding of how investment decisions within a mission oriented organization should be planned and evaluated independent of their social or financial nature In applying a logic framework approach it is shown that the strict separation of social such as grants and financial investments within NPO leads to a misallocation of scarce resources Only by judging both types of investments based on their combined ultimate mission related impact an optimal allocation of the initial inputs can be achieved Thanks to the linkage of both social and financial investments the evaluation of investments within NPO is not about either financial return or impact only but everything in between i e hybrid investments such as venture philanthropy or impact investments Further this thesis also bridges linguistic gaps between nonprofit research and finance and supplies practitioners with insights on how to structure investment processes in NPO and what effects they may expect from mission based portfolio selection This allows for a more effective allocation of tax exempt funds in terms of achieving higher degrees of mission effectiveness

Eileen Fitzpatrick,2007 This volume will be of particular interest to readers interested in expanding the applications of corpus linguistics techniques through new tools and approaches The text includes selected papers from the Fifth North American Symposium hosted by the Linguistics Department at Montclair State University in Montclair New Jersey in May 2004 The symposium papers represented several areas of corpus studies including language development syntactic analysis pragmatics and discourse language change register variation corpus creation and annotation and practical applications of corpus work primarily in language teaching but also in medical training and machine translation A common thread through most of the papers was the use of corpora to study domains longer than the word Not surprisingly fully half of the papers deal with the computational tools and linguistic strategies needed to search for and analyze these longer spans of language while most of the remaining papers examine particular syntactic and rhetorical properties of one or more corpora The
