German Light Cruisers Of World War II:

German Light Cruisers of World War II Gerhard Koop,Klaus-Peter Schmolke,2014-07-22 An immensely interesting look at the Emden K nigsberg Karlsruhe K ln Leipzig and N rnbergships from drawing board to destiny War History Online The warships of the World War II era German Navy are among the most popular subject in naval history with an almost uncountable number of books devoted to them However for a concise but authoritative summary of the design history and careers of the major surface ships it is difficult to beat a series of six volumes written by Gerhard Koop and illustrated by Klaus Peter Schmolke Each contains an account of the development of a particular class a detailed description of the ships with full technical details and an outline of their service heavily illustrated with plans battle maps and a substantial collection of photographs These have been out of print for ten years or more and are now much sought after by enthusiasts and collectors so this new modestly priced reprint of the series will be widely welcomed This volume is devoted to the six ships from Emden to N rnberg that were built between the wars They were primarily intended for commerce raiding but the war gave them few opportunities for such employment although they did provide useful support for key naval operations in the Baltic and North Sea Two were lost in the 1940 Norway campaign but the remainder survived for most of the conflict A ship by ship history of the cruisers The text is supported by an excellent collection of plans and photographs Overall this is a very impressive history of a fairly unimpressive set of warships HistoryOfWar.org

The Modern Cruiser Robert C.

Stern,2020-03-30 An entertaining and informative review of the evolution of one of the most important classes of warship from the technology of WWII into the missile age Firetrench Cruisers probably vary more in their characteristics than any other warship type and have certainly been subject to the most convoluted development There was always a basic tension between quantity and quality between numbers and unit size but at a more detailed level every one of the naval powers made different demands of their cruiser designers This makes the story of cruiser evolution in the world's major navies fascinating but complex This book sets out to provide a coherent history of the fortunes of this ship type in the twentieth century beginning with a brief summary of development before the First World War and an account of a few notable cruiser actions during that conflict that helped define what cruisers would look like in the post war world The core of the book is devoted to the impact of the naval disarmament treaty process which concentrated to a great extent on attempting to define limits to the numbers and size of cruisers that could be built in the process creating the treaty cruiser as a type that had never existed before and that existed solely because of the treaty process How the cruisers of the treaty era performed in the Second World War forms the final focus of this interesting well written and well grounded book which concludes with a look at the fate of the cruiser type since 1945 Warship International The result is probably the best single volume account of the subject to date

The Royal Netherlands Navy of World War II Ryan K. Noppen,2020-08-20 In the late 19th and early 20th century a combination of coastal defence for the homeland and fleet defence for the East Indies became the established naval strategy for the Royal Dutch Navy and set the template for the world wars Battleships were too expensive to build and maintain so after World War I there was significant investment in submarine development and construction A handful of modern light cruisers and a new class of destroyers were also constructed during the interwar years to serve as a small Fleet in Being in the East Indies as well as to support the actions of the navy's submarines The light cruiser HNLMS De Ruyter and the Java class light cruisers were the most powerful units of the new fleet whilst the backbone of the destroyer fleet was the Admiralen class and the Tromp class of destroyer leaders Beginning in December 1941 the Dutch Navy played a very active role in the defence of the East Indies against the Japanese during World War II The Battle of the Java Sea at the end of February 1942 crushed Dutch naval power in the East Indies sinking the cruisers Java and De Ruyter and killing Admiral Karel Doorman However several Dutch surface warships and submarines continued the fight against the Axis powers alongside the Allies until the end of World War II including a pair of British built destroyers Van Galen and Tjerk Hiddes This beautifully illustrated book from a leading scholar on Dutch military history provides a comprehensive guide to the Royal Netherlands Navy of the World War II period complete with detailed cutaways and battleplates of the fleet in action
