Easterbrooks,Hannah M. Dostal,2021 The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies in Literacy brings together state of the art research on literacy learning among deaf and hard of hearing learners DHH With contributions from experts in the field this volume covers topics such as the importance of language and cognition phonological or orthographic awareness morphosyntactic and vocabulary understanding reading comprehension and classroom engagement written language and learning among challenged populations Avoiding sweeping generalizations about DHH readers that overlook varied experiences this volume takes a nuanced approach providing readers with the research to help DHH students gain competence in reading comprehension Diversity in Deaf Education Marc Marschark,Venetta Lampropoulou,Emmanouil K. Skordilis,2016-05-31 Education for deaf learners has gone through significant changes in recent decades and the needs of many have changed considerably Meanwhile the population of deaf learners only has become more diverse This volume adopts a broad international perspective capturing the complexities and commonalities in the development of deaf learners as well as the challenges and potential solutions involved in supporting their learning and academic outcomes

Bilingualism and Bilingual Deaf Education Marc Marschark,Gladys Tang,Harry Knoors,2014-06-02 In Bilingualism and Bilingual Deaf Education volume editors Marc Marschark Gladys Tang and Harry Knoors bring together diverse issues and evidence in two related domains bilingualism among deaf learners in sign language and the written spoken vernacular and bilingual deaf education The volume examines each issue with regard to language acquisition language functioning social emotional functioning and academic outcomes It considers bilingualism and bilingual deaf education within the contexts of mainstream education of deaf and hard of hearing students in regular schools placement in special schools and programs for the deaf and co enrollment programs which are designed to give deaf students the best of both educational worlds The volume offers both literature reviews and new findings across disciplines from neuropsychology to child development and from linguistics to cognitive psychology With a focus on evidence based practice contributors consider recent investigations into bilingualism and bilingual programming in different educational contexts and in different countries that may have different models of using spoken and signed languages as well as different cultural expectations The 18 chapters establish shared understandings of what are meant by bilingualism bilingual education and co enrollment programming examine their foundations and outcomes and chart directions for future research in this multidisciplinary area Chapters are divided into three sections Linguistic Cognitive and Social Foundations Education and Bilingual Education and Co Enrollment Settings

Chapters in each section pay particular attention to causal and outcome factors related to the acquisition and use of these two languages by deaf learners of different ages. The impact of bilingualism and bilingual deaf education in these domains is considered through quantitative and qualitative investigations bringing into focus not only common educational psychological and linguistic variables but also expectations and reactions of the stakeholders in bilingual programming: parents, teachers, schools and the deaf and hearing students themselves.

Learning foreign languages: experiences of persons with disabilities and special educational needs and their teachers

Ewa Domagala-Zysk, Jitka Sedláčková, Katarzyna Karpińska-Szaj, 2025-09-22. In many parts of the world it is not a person's native language but a foreign one which is used for education work or entertainment. This is true for many European countries whose inhabitants need to learn English as a foreign language if they want to participate in education or among diverse fields in the workforce. In other parts of the world it might be Spanish, Hindi, Mandarin, Chinese, Arabic or other languages which will be serving a similar role. This need for learning a second language is understood well in many educational programs including those for students with special educational needs. However to date there is not much research of the experiences of persons with diverse additional needs as learners of foreign languages. The most robust literature covers the field of additional language acquisition among Deaf and Hard of Hearing (DHH) people (cf. Domagala-Zysk, Podlowska-Moritz, 2021) and others. Goals, methods and forms of teaching are fairly well described and DHH students' needs have been documented extensively.

Literacy Instruction for Students Who are Deaf and Hard of Hearing Jennifer S. Beal, Hannah M. Dostal, Susan R. Easterbrooks, 2024-07-12. Most students who are deaf or hard of hearing (DHH) struggle with acquiring literacy skills: some as a direct result of their hearing loss, some because they are receiving insufficient modifications to access the general education curriculum and some because they have additional learning challenges necessitating significant program modifications. This second edition of Literacy Instruction for Students who are Deaf and Hard of Hearing updates previous findings and describes current evidence-based practices in teaching literacy to DHH learners. Beal, Dostal and Easterbrooks provide educators and parents with a process for determining which literacy and language assessments are appropriate for individual DHH learners and whether an instructional practice is supported by evidence or causal factors. They describe the literacy process with an overview of related learning theories, language and literacy assessments and evidence-based instructional strategies across the National Reading Panel's five areas of literacy instruction: phonemic awareness, phonics, vocabulary, fluency and comprehension. The volume includes evidence-based writing strategies and case vignettes that highlight application of assessments and instructional strategies within each of these literacy areas. Crucially, it reviews the remaining challenges related to literacy instruction for DHH learners. Educators and parents who provide literacy instruction to DHH learners will benefit from the breadth and depth of literacy content provided in this concise literacy textbook.

Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies, Language, and Education Marc Marschark, Professor at the National Technical Institute of the Deaf at Rochester Institute of Technology, Patricia Elizabeth Spencer Research Professor in the Department of Social Work Gallaudet University, 2003-03-27 In Plato's Cratylus which dates to 360 B.C. Socrates alludes to the use of signs by deaf people. In his Natural History completed in 79 A.D. Pliny the Elder alludes to Quintus Pedius the deaf son of a Roman consul who had to seek permission from Caesar Augustus to pursue his training as an artist. During the Renaissance scores of deaf people achieved fame throughout Europe and by the middle of the 17th century the talents and communication systems of deaf people were being studied by a variety of noted scientists and philosophers. However the role of deaf people in society has always been hotly debated: could they be educated? Should they be educated? If so how? How does Deaf culture exist within larger communities? What do advances in the technology and the genetics of hearing loss portend for Deaf communities? In this landmark volume a wide range of international experts present a comprehensive and accessible overview of the diverse field of deaf studies: language and education. Pairing practical information with detailed analyses of what works, why and for whom, and banishing the paternalism once intrinsic to the field, the handbook consists of specially commissioned essays on topics such as language and language development, hearing and speech perception, education, literacy, cognition, and the complex cultural, social, and psychological issues associated with individuals who are deaf or hard of hearing. Through careful planning, collaboration, and editing, the various topics are interwoven in a manner that allows the reader to understand the current status of research in the field and recognize the opportunities and challenges that lie ahead, providing the most comprehensive reference resource on deaf issues. Written to be accessible to students and practitioners as well as researchers, The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies: Language and Education is a uniquely ambitious work that will alter both theoretical and applied landscapes. It surveys a field that has grown dramatically over the past 40 years, since sign languages were first recognized by scientists to be true languages. From work on the linguistics of sign language and parent-child interactions to analyses of school placement and the mapping of brain function in deaf individuals, research across a wide range of disciplines has greatly expanded, not just our knowledge of deafness and the deaf, but of the very origins of language, social interaction, and thinking. Bringing together historical information, research, and strategies for teaching and service provision, Marc Marschark and Patricia Elizabeth Spencer have given us what is certain to become the benchmark reference in the field.
