Transnational Identity and Memory Making in the Lives of Iraqi Women in Diaspora Nadia` Jones-Gailani, 2020-08-26 This book draws on an extensive archive of over one hundred oral narratives collected and recorded with Iraqi women in three sites: Amman, Detroit and Toronto. Nadia Jones Gailani demonstrates how the relationships between ethno-religious migrants, nation and citizenship are shaped by the traumatic experiences of forced displacement and integration into new communities and national imaginaries. This book also examines the broader historical trends that have precipitated migration from Iraq. While informed by research into the archival documentary record on Iraqis in North America, this book is first and foremost a study of gender and memory that focuses on women's oral histories. By historicizing the process through which ethno-religious and ethno-national communities become fractured and remade, Jones Gailani explores the expectations and realities of women as the supposed biological and cultural reproducers of the nation. The Iraqi women featured in this book assert their claims to belonging across three different generations, thereby opening up spaces to discuss how sites of migration shape the ability of migrants to lobby for the homeland even as they engage in daily struggles to advance their education and economic stability abroad.

South Africa's Emergent Middle Class Grace Khunou, 2017-10-02 This book is drawn from diverse studies that grapple with Black Middle Class experiences in contemporary and historical South Africa The chapters present research from diverse disciplines and tackle issues related to being black and middle class using both quantitative and qualitative approaches Like many other social phenomena the black middle class concept is seen as complex and not easy to pin down As a result conceptualizations from these chapters are dynamic and relevant for understanding the position of the black middle class in contemporary South African society An interesting dynamic explored by contributors is the critical engagement with the usually reductionist notions of black middle class experiences as ahistorical homogenous experiences of a group of conspicuous consumers These limiting notions are unpacked and repositioned in how the book is structured This book was published as a special issue of Development Southern Africa
