Food For Thought Ancient Visions And New Experiments Of Rural People:

Food for Thought Wim Hiemstra, Bertus Haverkort, 1999 This is a presentation of insights into the knowledge systems of rural people It goes beyond the technical knowledge embodied in traditional farming land use and health practices to explore their underlying ancient world views and cosmovisions It assesses the holistic nature strengths and also limitations of these bodies of knowledge and describes how in Asia Africa Latin America and Europe some development agencies are supporting rural people and their traditional leaders in carrying out practical experiments based on local concepts The contributors do not romanticise traditional knowledge or reject Western science but argue for a reciprocal relationship between these sources of knowledge The book hopes to challenge rural people researchers and development organizations to look for the sources of knowledge most appropriate to the specific ecological social and cultural context Adaptive Management

James Oglethorpe, 2002 This report examines the importance of Adaptive Management in promoting sustainable use A wide variety of papers selected from two major conferences on Adaptive Management are presented Complex Systems Theory and Development Practice Samir Rihani, 2002 Ranging over a wide terrain of social political and economic thinking and specific country experiences the author explains the key concepts in complex systems theory and their possible applications in development practice He examines various development issues and institutions in the light of what he sees as the limitations of rigid linear thinking in an essentially fluid non linear world Little wonder he concludes that the results of half a century of development effort have been so disappointing BOOK JACKET Religion and Sustainable Development Cathrien de Pater, Irene Dankelman, 2009 This publication is focused on the interface between religion sustainable development and higher education It is based on the underlying research question How are the different worldviews and religions as well as the debate about their alleged contributions to sustainable development incorporated in the academic disciplines of religious studies and theology P 7 The Cambridge Companion to Modern Indian Culture Vasudha Dalmia, Rashmi

Sadana, 2012-04-05 A wide ranging and truly interdisciplinary guide to understanding the relationship between India s colonial past and globalized present 100 Ways of Seeing an Unequal World Bob Sutcliffe, 2001-04 This innovative book builds on the fact that there is now a large body of statistical information about today s highly unequal world Bob Sutcliffe looks at current affairs development and international relations For anyone wanting to understand the contemporary world this book probes complex economic issues using innovative diagrams and charts PLA Notes 37:

Special Issue: Sexual and Reproductive Health , The Impact of Climate Change on Drylands A.J. Dietz, R. Ruben, A. Verhagen, 2006-04-11 Sahelian West Africa has recovered from the disastrous droughts of the 1970s and 1980s People have learned to adapt to risk and uncertainty in fragile dryland environments They as well as global change scientists are worried about the impact of climate change on these West African drylands What do the experiences of the last thirty years say about the preparedness for higher temperatures lower rainfall and even more variability Detailed studies on Dryland West Africa as a whole and on Burkina Faso Mali and Northern Ghana in particular show an advanced coping behaviour and increased adaptation but also major differences in vulnerability and coping potential Climate change preparedness programmes have only just started and require more robust support and more specific social targeting for a population which is rapidly growing even more rapidly urbanising and further integrating in a globalised economy This book is the first of its kind with a comprehensive analysis of climate change experiences in West African drylands with attention for pathways of change and the diversity of adaptation options available This book is of interest to scientists studying global and climate change especially dealing with issues of adaptation Social scientists economists geographers and policy makers concerned with West Africa should also read this book

Freedom Unfinished Jeremy Seabrook, 2001 This book takes its readers on a voyage of discovery Here is modern Bangladesh the life of its villages its farms and fields its city slums and elites its waterways its cultural heritage and the diversity of Bengali tradition all threatened by the emergence of a less tolerant version of Islam Day labourers and rickshaw drivers maidservants and prostitutes child labourers and garment workers landlords and politicians criminals and students all engage us in their lives We range through the watery landscapes of Barisal to the plains of North Bengal and the hills of Chittagong We visit the strongholds of fundamentalism And we also meet women fighting for education as well as idealists and freedom fighters The author shows how political struggle has now turned into a desperate battle for the spirit of Bengal which has become a battleground between the liberal humanism of a rooted Bengali culture and the disciplined austerities of Islam The tension between the contending forces gives this book a powerful resonance that goes far beyond the specifics of Bangladesh to wherever there is conflict between traditional cultures and the forces of globalism

Industrial Ecology and Spaces of Innovation K. Green, 2006-01-01 This is an especially timely book Carefully organized and well motivated its power lies in the explicit effort to ask how industrial ecology and innovation studies do can and should intersect Reid Lifset Yale School of Forestry and Environmental Studies and editor Journal of Industrial Ecology This book explores the disciplinary interfaces and practical implications of working across the two disciplines of industrial ecology IE and innovation studies IS Both disciplines have something to say about instigating environmental improvement and more sustainable futures IE is predicated on the idea that social and economic systems mirror or should be made to mirror natural ecological systems Proponents of IE devise models and techniques to trace material and energy resource flows as they move through social and economic systems They propose policy and management improvements to increase the resource efficiency of such systems By contrast IS researchers work with the idea that innovation is a dynamic activity vital to social and economic change and is shaped by a range of actors in industry in government and in households The authors illustrate the conceptual and practical problems and opportunities of working across this bi disciplinary interface with case studies presented from each and from hybrid perspectives that draw on both These include applied examples from IE such as an evaluation of industrial symbiosis in the UK and from working projects in industrialising countries Cases that originate with IS cover the areas of food construction and waste incineration New directions for conceptual development and further research are also offered Conceptual blindspots and research gaps are identified at the interface of the two disciplines Industrial Ecology and Spaces of Innovation will appeal to a wide and interdisciplinary audience including academics and researchers of environmental innovation management and economics industrial ecology and schools of environmental engineering Business environmental practitioners consultants and managers working with techniques such as life cycle analysis environmental impact assessment and collaborative industrial symbiosis initiatives will also find much to engage them within this book

Visions of Development Wendy R. Tyndale, 2017-03-02 Visions of Development presents first hand stories of groups and movements from many different religious and spiritual traditions that are working with impoverished communities in Africa Asia and Latin America It provides unique insights into how people's beliefs and spirituality can help to inform not only what they perceive development to be but also how they go about achieving it Through real life examples of courageous and innovative work the stories challenge much of the theory and practice of mainstream development agencies while also showing how religious inspiration can be a force for radical and positive change

Solarizing the Moon: Essays in honour of Lionel Sims Fabio Silva, Liz Henty, 2022-07-21 Lionel Sims has produced an influential body of work that has challenged existing narratives about British prehistoric monuments and provided innovative ways to approach and think about skylines This book in his honour is divided into three parts Anthropology and Human Origins Prehistory and Megalithic Monuments and Theory

Global Newsletter of Underutilized Crops (May 1999), Integrated Community-Managed Development L. Jan Slikkerveer, George Baourakis, Kurniawan Saefullah, 2019-01-24 This book provides an overview of recent advances in Integrated Community Managed Development ICMD as an innovative strategy for the community based development of local institutions in order to achieve lasting poverty reduction and empowerment The original approach presented here to improving the lives and livelihoods of the poor takes a critical stance on the failing concept of conventional community development as it is based on the shifting paradigm of bottom up cooperation and development where recent regional autonomy policies are enabling national services to successfully integrate with local institutions at the community level Based on recent experiences in South East Asia where the implementation of an alternative approach to integrating financial medical educational communication and socio cultural services has led to increased community participation and impressive poverty reduction the book highlights the theoretical methodological and practical aspects of this innovative strategy The potential offered by applying the newly developed ICMD formula worldwide as a function of themes principles and services is reflected in the book's diverse range of contributions written by respected researchers and practitioners in the fields of development economics and financial management

Managing the Environmental Crisis in Ghana Kwasi Nyamekye, 2014-11-19 Due to the strong inroads that Western scientism and Western Christianity have made in Africa as a result of colonialism post colonial African governments have tended to rely solely on Western scientific conservation epistemologies and models to the neglect of those of the Indigenous African peoples in addressing their environmental problems. However, there is enough evidence that neither modern scientific nor indigenous epistemologies and modes of addressing current ecological problems are Local Science Vs. Global Science Paul Sillitoe, 2007. While science has achieved a remarkable understanding of nature, affording humans an astonishing technological capability, it has led through Euro American global domination to the muting of other cultural views and values, even threatening their continued existence. There is a growing realization that the diversity of knowledge systems demand respect; some refer to them in a conservation idiom as alternative information banks. The scientific perspective is only one. We now have many examples of the soundness of local science and practices, some previously considered primitive and in need of change, but this book goes beyond demonstrating the soundness of local science and arguing for the incorporation of others' knowledge in development to argue that we need to look quizzically at the foundations of science itself and further challenge its hegemony, not only over local communities in Africa, Asia, the Pacific, or wherever, but also the global community. The issues are large and the challenges are exciting, as addressed in this book in a range of ethnographic and institutional contexts.

Human and International Security in India Crispin Bates, Akio Tanabe, Minoru Mio, 2015-09-07. With its common colonial experience, an overarching cultural unity despite apparent diversities, and issues of nation building cutting across national frontiers, South Asia offers a critical site on which to develop a discourse on regional security that centres on the notion of human security. This book analyses the progress that has been achieved since independence in multiple intersecting areas of human security development in India, the largest nation in South Asia, as well as considering the paradigms that might be brought to bear in future consideration and pursuance of these objectives. Providing original insights, the book analyses the idea of security based on specific human concerns cutting across state frontiers, such as socio-economic development, human rights, gender equity, environmental degradation, terrorism, democracy, and governance. It also discusses the realisation that human security and international security are inextricably inter-linked. The book gives an overview of Indian foreign policy with particular focus on its relationship with China. It also looks at public health care in India and issues of microfinance and gender. Democracy and violence in the country is discussed in depth, as well as Muslim identity and community. Human and International Security in India will be of particular interest to researchers of contemporary South Asian History, South Asian Politics, Sociology, and Development Studies. Subtle Agroecologies Julia Wright, 2021-06-30. This book is about the invisible or subtle nature of food and farming, and also about the nature of existence. Everything that we know and do not know about the physical world has a subtle counterpart which has been scarcely considered in modernist farming practice and research. If you think this book isn't for you, if it appears more important to attend to the pressing physical challenges the world is facing, before having the luxury of turning to such subtleties then think again For it could be precisely this worldview the one prioritises the physical material dimension of reality that helped get us into this situation in the first place Perhaps we need a different worldview to get us out This book makes a foundational contribution to the discipline of Subtle Agroecologies a nexus of indigenous epistemologies multidisciplinary advances in wave based and ethereal studies and the science of sustainable agriculture Not a farming system in itself Subtle Agroecologies superimposes a non material dimension upon existing materially based agroecological farming systems Bringing together 43 authors from 12 countries and five continents from the natural and social sciences as well as the arts and humanities this multi contributed book introduces the discipline explaining its relevance and potential contribution to the field of Agroecology Research into Subtle Agroecologies may be described as the systematic study of the nature of the invisible world as it relates to the practice of agriculture and to do this through adapting and innovating with research methods in particular with those of a more embodied nature with the overall purpose of bringing and maintaining balance and harmony Such research is an open minded inquiry its grounding being the lived experiences of humans working on and with the land over several thousand years to the present By reclaiming and reinterpreting the perennial relationship between humans and nature the implications would revolutionise agriculture heralding a new wave of more sustainable farming techniques changing our whole relationship with nature to one of real collaboration rather than control and ultimately transforming ourselves

Sustainable Management of Headwater Resources Libor Jansky, Martin J. Haigh, Haushila Prasad, 2005 Headwaters are the source of freshwater resources the margins of drainage basins and the first and zero order basins that surround every catchment The challenge is to define appropriate self sustainable management strategies and structures for these lands which meet the needs of the headwater habitat including its human inhabitants and the needs of habitats downstream The contributors to this book strive to anticipate emerging and future problems to discover integrated solutions to the problems already caused by land degradation natural hazards and development processes and to help develop better land management environmental protection and landscape regeneration practices and policies They also address the many challenges that remain the concern for effective sharing of local experience in science and technology community participation the role of education effectiveness and limits of current technology the selection of appropriate policies and goals modes of effective management and the sustainability of current activities Sustainable Management of Headwater Resources provides an understanding of current and prior situations and provides scientific analyses of local and regional headwater issues in India and Africa The authors analyse the current situation through field experiments that provide reliable information on the status of headwater resources in these regions This book originates from the conference on Sustainable Management of Headwater Resources at the 5th

International Conference on Headwaters in Nairobi Kenya Decentralization and Development of Sri Lanka Within a Unitary State N.S. Cooray, Sirimal Abeyratne, 2017-09-19 This comprehensive volume provides uniquely diverse insights into various aspects of decentralization and development from both developed and developing countries with special reference to Sri Lanka For a quarter century Sri Lanka was battered by its prolonged civil war which ended in 2009 but has now achieved relative peace and stability Having developed rapidly Sri Lanka offers a classic example for developing countries There is however a strong need particularly in the context of postwar conflict to formulate policies for reconciliation peace building and development at all levels local provincial and national Decentralization itself is not a new subject however how to devolve power to local administrative levels within a unitary system and how to link the devolved power to make local administrative systems more conducive to development and provide better services for citizens are challenging tasks in many countries Taking into account the developmental governance and conciliatory needs and the sensitivity of central local relations this volume critically examines the local government systems in Sri Lanka It also proposes a viable effective and autonomous local level administrative unit based which draws on experiences from Japan and other countries and identifies the role and functions of such a unit The book presents commissioned papers from a three year research project undertaken by internationally respected experts with financial support by the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science JSPS under a Grant in Aid for Scientific Research
