Farming and Food for the Future Barbara L. Benish, Nathalie Blanc, 2022-09-30 This book explores the impact of artistic experiments in inspiring people to turn away from current food consumerism and take an active role in preserving sustaining and protecting the environment As artists are expanding their practice into social justice and community concerns erasing traditional forms of expression and integrating others the culture around food and its production has been added to a new vocabulary of experiential art The authors measure the impact of such experiments on local food consumption and production focusing on education and youth both in the surrounding community and culture at large They suggest how these projects can be up scaled to further encourage sustainable solutions for our environment and communities The book explores the reflections and motivations of case study practitioners in urban and rural areas and through interviews engages with artists who are pioneering a new trend to create hubs of activity away from traditional art spaces in cities to follow a non hierarchal practice that is de centralized and communally based This book will be of great interest to academic readers concerned with issues related to environmental aesthetics eco design eco criticism culture heritage memory and identity and those interested in the current debates on the place of aesthetics and culture in sustainability Food Edith Greer, 1915 Food

Texturology: Measurement and Perception of Food Textural Properties Andrew Rosenthal, Jianshe Chen, 2023-12-20 The concept behind this book is to take a holistic view of food texture starting with the determination of food texture its perception in the mouth and its measurement by both sensory and instrumental methods and to examine the relation between them The book has been divided into four sections Fundamentals Sensory and Human Interactions Instrumental Analysis and Food Products Essentially we cover the techniques used for measuring food texture and then apply them to the different product groups Readers of the first edition will notice the title has changed with the adoption of the term texturology In the long history of food texture research texturology has been occasionally used in literature The term texturology has not been widely accepted by texture researchers texturologists because of their concern over whether the theories and techniques are broad and strong enough to support texture research as a scientific discipline During the 24 years since the publication of the first edition the editors have observed vast developments in theories as well as the assessment methodology of food texture both sensory and instrumental and these have shaped our understanding This second edition brings the science up to date by introducing topics not previously covered e g psychophysics tribology oral processing texture maps and special foods for dysphagia patients It includes an expos of the instruments to measure food texture and also considers techniques for measuring consumer perception of food texture in addition to the sensory properties Additionally it amends omissions from the first edition such as dairy products fish bakery products and sugar confectionery as product groups All in all it is expanded and updated in its coverage of food texturology as a coherent scientific discipline
