Excerpt from Footprints in the Forest: The camp was similar to many that have been described before and with which the reader has become familiar long ago. It was simply a small pile of blazing sticks started close to a large tree with a little stream of water winding just beyond More wood was heaped near and Jack was lolling lazily on the blanket which he had brought with him while his friend sat on the pile of sticks opposite About the Publisher

3D Remote Sensing Applications in Forest Ecology Hooman Latifi, Ruben Valbuena, 2019-11-19 Dear Colleagues The composition structure and function of forest ecosystems are the key features characterizing their ecological properties and can thus be crucially shaped and changed by various biotic and abiotic factors on multiple spatial scales The magnitude and extent of these changes in recent decades calls for enhanced mitigation and adaption measures Remote sensing data and methods are the main complementary sources of up to date synoptic and objective information of forest ecology Due to the inherent 3D nature of forest ecosystems the analysis of 3D sources of remote sensing data is considered to be most appropriate for recreating the forest s compositional structural and functional dynamics In this Special Issue of Forests we published a set of state of the art scientific works including experimental studies methodological developments and model validations all dealing with the general topic of 3D remote sensing assisted applications in forest ecology We showed applications in forest ecology from a broad collection of method and sensor combinations including fusion schemes All in all the studies and their focuses are as broad as a forest s ecology or the field of remote sensing and thus reflect the very diverse usages and directions toward which future research and practice will be directed

Advances in Forest Inventory for Sustainable Forest Management and Biodiversity Monitoring Piermaria Corona,Michael Köhl,Marco Marchetti,2013-04-17 Forests represent a remnant wilderness of high recreational value in the densely populated industrial societies a threatened natural resource in some regions of the world and a renewable reservoir of essential raw materials for the wood processing industry In June 1992 the United Nations Conference on the Environment and Development UNCED in Rio de Janeiro initiated a world wide process of negotiation with the aim of ensuring sustainable management conservation and development of forest resources Although there seems to be unanimous support for sustainable development from all quarters there is no generally accepted set of indicators which allows comparisons to be made between a given situation and a desirable one In a recent summary paper prepared by the FAO

Forestry and Planning Division Ljungman et al 1999 find that forest resources continue to diminish while being called upon to produce a greater range of goods and services and that calls for sustainable forest management will simply go unheeded if the legal policy and administrative environment do not effectively control undesirable practices Does the concept of sustainable forest management represent not much more than a magic formula for achieving consensus a vague idea which makes it difficult to match action to rhetoric The concept of sustainable forest management is likely to remain an imprecise one but we can contribute to avoiding management practices that are clearly unsustainable Forest and Stream ,1890
