Extending Life Enhancing Life A National Research Agenda On Aging:

Extending Life, Enhancing Life Institute of Medicine, Division of Health Promotion and Disease Prevention, Committee on a National Research Agenda on Aging, 1991-02-01 Americans are living longer than ever before For many though these extra years have become a bitter gift marred by dementia disability and loss of independence Extending Life Enhancing Life sets the course toward practical solutions to these problems by specifying 15 research priorities in five key areas of investigation Basic biomedicine To understand the fundamental processes of aging Clinical To intervene against common disabilities and maladies of older persons Behavioral and social To build on past successes with behavioral and social interventions Health services delivery To seek answers to the troubling issues of insufficient delivery of health care in the face of increasing health care costs Biomedical ethics To clarify underlying ethical guidelines about life and death decisions Most important the volume firmly establishes the connection between research and its beneficial results for the quality of life for older persons Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies

Appropriations for Fiscal Year 1995: Nondepartmental witnesses United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies, 1994

NIH Guide for Grants and Contracts National Institutes of Health (U.S.), 1992 Aging and Human Longevity M.-F. Schulz-Aellen, 2012-12-06 The proportion of elderly people continues to increase in the western world nearly a quarter of the population will be over 65 years by the year 2050 Since aging is accompanied by an increase in diseases and by a deterioration in well being finding solutions to these social medical and psychological problems is necessarily a major goal for society Scientists and medical practitioners are therefore faced with the urgent task of increasing basic knowledge of the biological processes that cause aging More resources must be put into this research in order to achieve better understanding of the cellular mechanisms that underlie the differences in life span between species and to answer the difficult questions of why some individuals age more quickly than others and why some develop liver problems some have heart problems and others brain problems The results of such a wide program of research will provide important information about the causes of many life threatening and or debilitating diseases of old age it will help find ways to prevent some of the ailments that result from aging and it may well lead to discoveries enabling the prolongation of human life National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1991 Aging and Disabilities James Callahan, 2019-04-11 This book helps in building a bridge between the networks The topics of aging and disabilities are multifaceted and therefore may be approached in many ways The editors have chosen to focus on four systems and areas of common ground aging developmental disabilities independent living movement and rehabilitation to investigate the emerging intersection of the two fields Healthy Aging Ken Dychtwald, 1999 In this insightful book the nation s leading researchers analysts educators and experts on health and aging policies and programs present their frustrations findings and insights on what current research reveals about the future of the healthy aging They then offer sound recommendations on how to prevent a crisis in health care

A Strategy for Assessing Science National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Center for Studies of Behavior and Development, Committee on Assessing Behavioral and Social Science Research on Aging, 2007-03-21 A Strategy for Assessing Science offers strategic advice on the perennial issue of assessing rates of progress in different scientific fields It considers available knowledge about how science makes progress and examines a range of decision making strategies for addressing key science policy concerns These include avoiding undue conservatism that may arise from the influence of established disciplines achieving rational high quality accountable and transparent decision processes and establishing an appropriate balance of influence between scientific communities and agency science managers A Strategy for Assessing Science identifies principles for setting priorities and specific recommendations for the context of behavioral and social research on aging

Community Nutrition Gail C. Frank, 2008 This graduate level community nutrition textbook presents a conceptual framework for understanding the course of health and disease and matching community nutrition or applied nutrition epidemiology to the model

The Gerontological Prism: Developing Interdisciplinary Bridges Jeffrey Michael Clair, Richard Allman, 2018-10-26 The Gerontological Prism promotes disciplinary cooperation in aging research and practice To some extent each chapter explores a unified objective that of generating a disciplinary blind gerontology The fundamental assumption throughout this book is that the aging individual and society can be enhanced by an understanding of the correlates of basic social behavioral demographic economic political ethical and biomedical processes involving aging Each author touches on issues that have both social psychological and practical policy significance They aim toward sensitizing the reader to the possibilities of a properly informed interdisciplinary approach to gerontology

In Search of the Secrets of Aging National Institute on Aging, 1993

Aging Under the Microscope, 2002 The study of aging is not what it used to be Where gerontologists once looked for a single all encompassing theory to explain aging a single gene or the decline of the immune system they are now finding multiple processes combining and interacting on many levels

Families Caring for an Aging America National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Health Care Services, Committee on Family Caregiving for Older Adults, 2016-12-08 Family caregiving affects millions of Americans every day in all walks of life At least 17.7 million individuals in the United States are caregivers of an older adult with a health or functional limitation The nation's family caregivers provide the lion's share of long term care for our older adult population They are also central to older adults access to and receipt of health care and community based social services Yet the need to recognize and support caregivers is among the least appreciated challenges facing the aging U.S. population Families Caring for an Aging America examines the prevalence and nature of family caregiving of older adults and the available evidence on the effectiveness of programs supports and other interventions designed to support family caregivers This report also assesses and recommends policies to address the needs of family caregivers and to minimize the barriers that they encounter in trying to meet the needs of older adults Health Outcomes for Older People National Research Council, Institute of Medicine, Committee to Develop an Agenda for Health Outcomes Research for Elderly People, 1996-12-11 The Role of Nutrition in Maintaining Health in the Nation's Elderly Institute of Medicine, Food and Nutrition Board, Committee on Nutrition Services for Medicare Beneficiaries, 2000-06-09 Malnutrition and obesity are both common among Americans over age 65 There are also a host of other medical conditions from which older people and other Medicare beneficiaries suffer that could be improved with appropriate nutritional intervention Despite that access to a nutrition professional is very limited Do nutrition services benefit older people in terms of morbidity mortality or quality of life Which health professionals are best qualified to provide such services What would be the cost to Medicare of such services Would the cost be offset by reduced illness in this population This book addresses these questions provides recommendations for nutrition services for the elderly and considers how the coverage policy should be approached and practiced The book discusses the role of nutrition therapy in the management of a number of diseases It also examines what the elderly receive in the way of nutrition services along the continuum of care settings and addresses the areas of expertise needed by health professionals to provide appropriate nutrition services and therapy Nutrition and Integrative Medicine Aruna Bakhru, 2018-08-06 While medical professionals continue to practice traditional allopathic medicine the public has turned toward nutritional and integrative medical therapies especially for addressing the proliferation of chronic diseases Written by leaders in the academic and scientific world Nutrition and Integrative Medicine A Primer for Clinicians presents various modalities to help restore health This book provides users with a guide to evaluating and recommending nutritional and integrative therapies The book offers insights on the microbiome of the human body examines the relationship of human health to the microbiome of the food we ingest and introduces the concept of food as information It provides enlightenment on anti aging and healing modalities mind body medicine and an investigation of psychological trauma as related to disease causation Integrative therapies including water light and sound therapy are explored and information on healing chronic disease through nutrition the tooth body connection the role of toxins in disease causation and electromagnetic field hypersensitivity as well as its management is presented The Handbook of Life-Span Development, Volume 1 Richard M. Lerner, Willis F. Overton, 2010-12-14 In the past fifty years scholars of human development have been moving from studying change in humans within sharply defined periods to seeing many more of these phenomenon as more profitably studied over time and in relation to other processes The Handbook of Life Span Development Volume 1 Cognition Biology and Methods presents the study of human development conducted by the best scholars in the 21st century Social workers counselors and public health workers will receive coverage of the biological and cognitive aspects of human change across the lifespan Report of the National Institutes of Health , 1992 Pharmacokinetics and Drug Interactions in the Elderly and Special Issues in Elderly

African-American Populations Committee on Pharmacokinetics and Drug Interaction in the Elderly, Institute of Medicine, 1997-09-08 Reports in the popular press about the increasing longevity of Americans and the aging of the baby boom generation are constant reminders that the American population is becoming older. Consequently, an issue of growing medical health policy and social concern is the appropriate and rational use of medications by the elderly. Although becoming older does not necessarily correlate with increasing illness, aging is associated with anatomical and physiological changes that affect how medications are metabolized by the body. Furthermore, aging is often related to an increased frequency of chronic illness, often combined with multiple health problems and an increased use of medications. Thus, a better understanding of the absorption, distribution, metabolism, and excretion of drugs, of the physiologic responses to those medications, as well as of the interactions among multiple medications, is crucial for improving the health of older people.
