and corporate policies to define and enforce fetal rights have become commonplace. These developments affect all women pregnant or not because women are considered potentially pregnant for much of their lives. In her powerful and important book Rachel Roth brings a new perspective to the debate over fetal rights. She clearly delineates the threat to women's equality posed by the new concept of maternal fetal conflict, an idea central to the fetal rights movement in which women and fetuses are seen as having interests that are diametrically opposed. Roth begins by placing fetal rights politics in historical and comparative context and by tracing the emergence of the notion of fetal rights. Against a backdrop of gripping stories about actual women, she reviews the difficulties fetal rights claims create for women in the areas of employment, health care, and drug and alcohol regulation. She looks at court cases and state legislation over a period of two decades beginning in 1973, the year of the Roe v. Wade decision legalizing abortion. Her exhaustive research shows how judicial decisions and public policies that grant fetuses rights tend to displace women as claimants, as recipients of needed services, and ultimately as citizens. When a corporation, medical authority, or the state asserts or accepts rights claims on behalf of a fetus, the usual justification involves improving the chance of a healthy birth. This strategy, Roth persuasively argues, is not necessary to achieve the goal of a healthy birth; it is often counterproductive to it and always undermines women's equal standing.

Making Women Count Marian Sawer, Gail Radford, 2008. This is the first full-scale history of the Women's Electoral Lobby in Australia, which burst onto the scene of federal politics in 1972. It assesses WEL's significance as a policy actor and its attempts to shape public agenda, as well as the meaning of WEL for those involved and its impact on their lives. WEL is the women's organisation most often referred to in parliament and the media. Provided by publisher. Making War, Making Women Melissa A. McEuen, 2011-02-15. Drawing on war propaganda, popular advertising, voluminous government records, and hundreds of letters and other accounts written by women in the 1940s, Melissa A. McEuen examines how extensively women's bodies and minds became battlegrounds in the U.S. fight for victory in World War II. Women were led to believe that the nation's success depended on their efforts, not just on factory floors but at their dressing tables, bathroom sinks, and laundry rooms. They were to fill their arsenals with lipstick, nail polish, creams, and cleansers in their battles to meet the standards of ideal womanhood touted in magazines, newspapers, billboards, posters, pamphlets, and in the rapidly expanding pinup genre. Scrutinized and sexualized in new ways, women understood that their faces, clothes, and comportment would indicate how seriously they took their responsibilities as citizens. McEuen also shows that the wartime rhetoric of freedom, democracy, and postwar opportunity coexisted uneasily with the realities of a racially stratified society. The context of war created and reinforced whiteness, and McEuen explores how African Americans grappled with whiteness as representing the true American identity. Using perspectives of cultural studies and feminist theory, Making War, Making Women offers a broad look at how women on the American home front grappled with a political culture that used their bodies in service of the war effort.

Making Women's Histories Pamela S. Nadell, Kate Haulman, 2013-01-07. Examines how women's histories are explored and explained around the world Making Women's Histories showcases the transformations that the intellectual and political production of women's history has engendered across time and space. It considers the difference women's and gender history has made to and within national fields of study and to what extent the wider historiography has integrated this new knowledge. What are the accomplishments of women's and gender history? What are its shortcomings? What is its future? The contributors discuss their discovery of women's histories, the multiple turns the field has taken and how place affected the course of this scholarship. Noted scholars of women's and gender history stand atop such historiographically defined vantage points as Tsarist Russia, the British Empire in Egypt and India, Qing dynasty China and the U.S. roiling through the 1960s. From these and other peaks they gaze out at the world around them, surveying trajectories in the creation of women's histories in recent and distant pasts and envisioning their futures.

Making Women's Medicine Masculine Monica H. Green, 2008-03-20 Using sources ranging from the famous 12th century female practitioner Trota of Salerno through to the great tomes of Renaissance male physicians, this is a pioneering study challenging the common belief that prior to the 18th century men were never involved in any aspect of women's healthcare in Europe.

Women and Dictionary-Making Lindsay Rose Russell, 2018-08-23 Dictionaries are a powerful genre perceived as authoritative and objective records of the language, impervious to personal bias. But who makes dictionaries? Shapes both how they are constructed and how they are used. Tracing the craft of dictionary making from the fifteenth century to the present day, this book explores the vital but little known significance of women and gender in the creation of English language dictionaries. Women worked as dictionary patrons, collaborators, readers, compilers and critics, while gender ideologies served at turns to prevent, secure and veil women's involvements and innovations in dictionary making. Combining historical, rhetorical and feminist methods, this is a monumental recovery of six centuries of women's participation in dictionary making and a robust investigation of how the social life of the genre is influenced by the social expectations of gender.

Women's Ways of Making Maureen Daly Goggin, Shirley K. Rose, 2021-04-21 Women's Ways of Making draws attention to material practices: those that the hands perform as three epistemologies—an episteme, a techne and a phronesis—that together give pointed consideration to making as a rhetorical, embodied endeavor. Combined, these epistemologies show that making is a form of knowing: that episteme, knowing how, techne and wisdom, making, phronesis. Since the Enlightenment, embodied knowledge creation has been overlooked, ignored or disparaged as inferior to other forms of expression or thinking that seem to leave the material world behind. Privileging the hand over the eye as the work in this collection does, thus problematizes the way in which the eye has been co-opted by thinkers as the mind's tool of investigation. Contributors to this volume argue that other senses—touch, taste, smell, hearing—are keys to knowing one's materials. Only when all these ways of knowing are engaged can making be understood as a rhetorical practice. In Women's Ways of Making, contributors explore ideas of making that run the gamut from videos produced by beauty vloggers to zine production and art programs at women's correctional facilities. Bringing together senior scholars new voices and a fresh take on material rhetoric this book will be of interest to a broad range of readers in composition and rhetoric Contributors Angela Clark Oates Jane L Donawerth Amanda Ellis Theresa M Evans Holly Fulton Babicke Bre Garrett Melissa Greene Magdelyn Hammong Helwig Linda Hanson Jackie Hoermann Christine Martorana Aurora Matzke Jill McCracken Karen S Neubauer Daneryl Nier Weber Sherry Rankins Roberson Kathleen J Ryan Rachael Ryerson Andrea Severson Lorin Shellenberger Carey Smitherman Clark Emily Standridge Charlese Trower Christy I Wenger Hui Wu Kathleen Blake Yancey Women in Politics and Decision-Making in the Late Twentieth Century United Nations Office at Vienna,2024-08-19 Making Sense of Women's Lives , Lauri Umansky,Michele Plott,2000-08-01

Cash transfers and women's control over decision-making and labor supply in Egypt El-Enbaby, Hoda,Gilligan, Daniel,Karachiwalla, Naureen,Kassim, Yumna,Kurdi, Sikandra,2019-12-23 Women's control over decision making within their family particularly regarding the use of household income can play an important and long lasting role in shaping their well being and that of their children Cash transfer programs often target women in order to increase their control over household resources Empirical evidence on the effectiveness of this approach is mixed and suggests the importance of local context We present evidence on the effect of cash transfers on women's control over decision making in the MENA region where little evidence is available and where cultural norms around women's roles differ from more studied regions Using a regression discontinuity approach we identify the impact of Egypt's Takaful national cash transfer program on women's control over decision making and labor supply Receiving cash transfers mostly reduced women's reported ability to influence household decisions particularly regarding child healthcare The loss of control over decision making was greater for women with less than primary education Other effects of the program include a decline in women's employment and an increase in men's involvement in spheres of decision making usually controlled by women These results are robust to changes in model specification We present suggestive evidence from mediation analysis that the negative effects on women's control over decision making was directly related to these declines in employment and increase in men's involvement in female spheres The negative findings are not wholly supported by complementary qualitative work in which women reported more positive perceptions of the program's impacts Women's Employment in the Making of Steel, 1943 Ethel Erickson, 1944

Making Women Pay Smitha Radhakrishnan, 2021-10-25 In Making Women Pay Smitha Radhakrishnan explores India's microfinance industry which in the past two decades has come to saturate the everyday lives of women in the name of state led efforts to promote financial inclusion and women's empowerment Despite this favorable language Radhakrishnan argues microfinance in India does not provide a market oriented development intervention even though it may appear to help women borrowers Rather this commercial industry seeks to extract the maximum value from its customers through exploitative relationships that benefit especially class privileged men Through ethnography interviews and historical analysis Radhakrishnan demonstrates how the unpaid and underpaid labor of marginalized women borrowers ensures both profitability and symbolic legitimacy for microfinance institutions their employees and their leaders In doing so she centralizes gender in the study of microfinance reveals why most microfinance programs target women and explores the exploitative implications of this targeting Women in Early Modern Europe, 1500-1700 Cissie C. Fairchilds, 2007 In this wide ranging volume Cissie Fairchilds rejects conventional accounts of the Early Modern period that claim it was a period of diminishing power and rights for European women Instead she shows that it was a period of positive changes that challenged and led to the eventual destruction of traditional misogynist notions that women were inferior to men The book explores the historical basis of patriarchal views of women and describes the great intellectual debate over the nature and roles of women taking place at the time It gives an account of women's daily lives and looks at women's work during the period The book also deals with the role of women in religion and with witchcraft and the prosecution of women as witches The book concludes by examining the relationship between women and the State Making Women's History Mary Ritter Beard, 2000 The only collection of work by a groundbreaking historian
