For Louis Pasteur Princeton Series Of Contemporary Poets:

For Louis Pasteur Edgar Bowers, 1989 In poems about his friends his family's place in Georgia trips to New Mexico persons in the Old Testament and Louis Pasteur Edgar Bowers writes to place and examine his subjects and his experiences in history and in cultures The Thirteen Views of Santa Barbara for example is grounded in a place usually perceived as ahistoric with the same motive that prompts him to ask in the title poem How shall a generation know its story If it will know no other and that causes him throughout the collection to discover the possibilities of blank verse and of classical kinds of poem structure and feeling From Thirteen Views of Santa Barbara In spring we fish for halibut In summer When grunion spawn at midnight in the surf We look for them on the sand to throw them back In winter from the point we cast beyond The breakers to where the bass feed Solar age And mythic distance turn round the point's ellipse Earth is dark Air darkens The moon is white Then as if I were there I watch us here Immensities of purpose barely visible Intent upon the message in the line Startlingly taut with sudden gravity Muscle and bone of the reflected light The Eternal City Kathleen Graber, 2010-07-01 Finalist for the National Book Award and the National Book Critics Circle Award With an epigraph from Freud comparing the mind to a landscape in which all that ever was still persists The Eternal City offers eloquent testimony to the struggle to make sense of the present through conversation with the past Questioning what it means to possess and to be possessed by objects and technologies Kathleen Graber's award winning second collection of poetry brings together the elevated and the quotidian to make neighbors of Marcus Aurelius Klaus Kinski Walter Benjamin and Johnny Depp Like Aeneas who escapes Troy carrying his father on his back the speaker of these intellectually and emotionally ambitious poems juggles the weight of private and public history as she is transformed from settled resident to pilgrim At Lake Scugog Troy Jollimore, 2011-03-14 This is an eagerly awaited collection of new poems from the author of Tom Thomson in Purgatory which won the National Book Critics Circle Award and was hailed by the New York Times as a snappy entertaining book A triumphant follow up to that acclaimed debut At Lake Scugog demonstrates why the San Francisco Chronicle has called Troy Jollimore a new and exciting voice in American poetry Jollimore is a professional philosopher and in witty and profound ways his formally playful poems dramatize philosophical subjects especially the individual's relation to the larger world and the permeable constantly shifting border between inner and outer For instance the speaker of The Solipsist suspecting that the entire world lives inside of your skull wonders why God would make ear and eye to face outward not in And Tom Thomson a character who also appeared in Jollimore's first book finds himself journeying like an astronaut through the far reaches of the space that fills his head an experience that prompts him to ask that a doorbell be installed on the inside so that he can warn the world before intruding on it _____ From At Lake Scugog LOBSTERS Troy Jollimore tend to cluster in prime numbers suboceanic bundles of bug consciousness submerged in waking slumber plunged in pits of murk black water They have coalesced out of the pitch and grime and salt suspended within that atmospheric gloom Their skin is colorless below But when exposed to air they start to radiate bright green then soon a siren red that wails I m dead The meat inside though is as white as teeth or the hard boiled egg that comes to mind when one cracks that crisp shell and digs beneath Caress the toothy claw edge of its pincer and you will know the single simple thought that populates its mind The lobster trap is elegance itself one moving part the thing that s caught

Please Make Me Pretty, I Don't Want to Die Tawanda Mulalu, 2022-09-13 The debut collection of an exciting new voice in poetry Please make me pretty I don t want to die explores tactility sound sensuality and intimacy Set across the four seasons of a year these fresh and original poems by Tawanda Mulalu combine an inviting confessional voice and offbeat imagery and offer an appealing mixture of seriousness and humor The speaker of these poems probes romantic and interracial intimacy the strangeness and difficulty of his experiences as a diasporic Black African in White America his time working as a teacher s assistant in a third grade classroom and his ambivalent admiration for canonical poets who have influenced him especially Sylvia Plath Juxtaposing traditional forms such as sonnets and elegies with less orthodox interjections such as prose poem prayers and other meditations the collection presents a poetic world both familiar and jarring one in which history the body and poetry can collide in a single surprising turn of image The stars also suffer Immense and dead their gasses burn distant like castanets of antebellum teeth My open window a synecdoche of country

The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 1968 Syllabus of Errors Troy Jollimore, 2015-09-29 A new collection of poetry from the winner of the National Book Critics Circle Award we are fixed to perpetrate the species I meant perpetuate as if our duty were coupled with our terror As if beauty itself were but a syllabus of errors Troy Jollimore s first collection of poems won the National Book Critics Circle Award was hailed by the New York Times as a snappy entertaining book and led the San Francisco Chronicle to call him a new and exciting voice in American poetry And his critically acclaimed second collection expanded his reputation for poems that often take a playful approach to philosophical issues While the poems in Syllabus of Errors share recognizable concerns with those of Jollimore's first two books readers will also find a voice that has grown more urgent more vulnerable and more sensitive to both the inevitability of tragedy and the possibility of renewal Poems such as Ache and Echo The Black Capped Chickadees of Martha's Vineyard and When You Lift the Avocado to Your Mouth explore loss regret and the nature of beauty while the culminating long poem Vertigo is an elegy for a lost friend as well as a fantasia on death repetition and transcendence not to mention the poet's favorite Hitchcock film Ingeniously organized into sections that act as reflections on six quotations about birdsong these poems are themselves an answer to the question the poet asks in On Birdsong What would we say to the cardinal or jay given wings that could mimic their velocities yet hopeful new morning in America one in which potential cataclysm exists alongside possibility and change Stet Dora Malech, 2018-10-30 A fascinating collection of serious and playful poems that tap the inventive possibilities of the anagram and other constraining forms In Stet poet Dora Malech takes constraint as her catalyst and subject exploring what it means to make or break a vow to create art out of a life in flux to reckon with the body's bounds and to arrive at a place where one might bear and care for another life Tapping the inventive possibilities of constrained forms particularly the revealing limitations of the anagram Stet is a work of serious play that brings home the connections and intimacies of language Stet from the Latin for let it stand is a proofreading term meaning to retain or return to a previous phrasing The uncertainty of changes made and then reconsidered haunts Stet as its poems explore what is left unsaid through erasures redaction and the limitations of spelling How does one go back on one's word or stand by one's decisions Can a life be remade or revised or is the past forever present as in a palimpsest Embodying the physicality and reproductive potentiality inherent in the collection's forms and figures Stet ends expectantly not searching for closure but awaiting the messy living possibilities of what comes next By turns troubling and consoling Stet powerfully combines lyric invention and brilliant wordplay Contemporary Poets Tracy Chevalier, 1991 Contains biographical entries a list of separately published books and an essay on each poet

The Two Yvones Jessica Greenbaum, 2012-09-30 This is the second collection from a Brooklyn poet whose work many readers will know from the New Yorker Jessica Greenbaum's narrative poems in which objects and metaphor share highest honors attempt revelation through close observation of the everyday Written in plain American that cats and dogs can read as Marianne Moore phrased it these contemporary lyrics bring forward the challenges of Wisława Szymborska the reportage of Yehuda Amichai and the formal forays of Marilyn Hacker The book asks at heart how does life present itself to us and how do we create value from our delights and losses Riding on Kenneth Koch's instruction to find one true feeling and hang on The Two Yvones overtakes the present with candor meditation and the classic aspiration to shape lyric into a lasting force Moving from 1960s Long Island to 1980s Houston to today's Brooklyn the poems range in subject from the pages of the Talmud to a squirrel trapped in a kitchen One tells the story of young lovers warmed by the rays Their pelvic bones sent over the horizon of their belts while another describes the Bronx Zoo in winter where the giraffes pad about like nurses walking quietly outside a sick room Another poem defines the speaker via a packing slip of her parts brown eyes brown hair from hirsute tribes in Poland and Russia The title poem in which the speaker and friends stumble through a series of flawed memories about each other unearths the human vulnerabilities that shape so much of the collection From The Two Yvones WHEN MY DAUGHTER GOT SICK Her cries impersonated all the world The fountain's bubbling speech was just a trick But still I turned and looked as she implored Or leaned toward muffled noises through the bricks Just radio whose waves might be her wavering whose pitch might be her quavering I turned toward where the sirens might be Save Me Help me Mommy Mommy everything She too had said since sloughing off the world She took to bed and now her voice stays fused To air like

 This is a remarkable first book There is an acute and subtle sensibility at work Pilgrim Heights is one of the best poems by an American that I have seen in many years From Pilgrim Heights Something something the heart here Misses something it knows it needs Unable to bless the wind passes A swifter shadow sweeps the reeds The heart a colder contrast brushes So this fool face forward belly Pressed among the rushes plays out His pulse to the dune's long slant Down from blue to bluer a moral precision embracing us without eschewing I she rethinks questions of citizenship the selections of sensory memory and by extension the tether of word and image to the actual She writes I accept the truth in newspapers by holding the ever evolving inner life I Was Working Ariel Yelen, 2024-10-08 A remarkable book of poems that mixes humor about the absurdities of office life with moments of Zen like wisdom Seeking to find a song of the self that can survive or even thrive amid the mundane routines of work Ariel Yelen's lyrics include wry reflections on the absurdities and abjection of being a poet who is also an office worker and commuter in New York In the poems dialogues between labor and autonomy the beeping of a microwave in the staff lounge becomes an opportunity for song the poet writes from a cubicle as it is being sawed in half and the speaker of the title poem decides to quit everything except work sacrificing her life and loved ones to bury herself in her four jobs striving at any cost to find relief from the attempt to both have a life and be a good worker No one was happy to see me and so at last I could work No one said it s okay It wasn t okay thus my work flourished Despite such discontents I Was Working finds humor play and even joy in its original and compelling search for the possibility of self liberation
