Architects and Intellectual Culture in Post-Restoration England Matthew

Walker, 2017-10-13 Architects Builders and Intellectual Culture in Restoration England charts the moment when well educated well resourced English intellectuals first became interested in classical architecture in substantial numbers This occurred after the Restoration of the Monarchy in 1660 and involved people such as John Evelyn Robert Hooke Sir Christopher Wren and Roger North Matthew Walker explores how these figures treated architecture as a subject of intellectual enquiry either as writers as designers of buildings or as both In four substantial chapters it looks at how the architect was defined as a major intellectual figure how architects acquired material that allowed them to define themselves as intellectually competent architects how intellectual writers in the period handled knowledge of ancient architecture in their writing and how the design process in architecture was conceived of in theoretical writing at the time In all Walker shows that the key to understanding English architectural culture at the time is to understand how architecture was handled as knowledge and how architects were conceived of as collectors and producers of such knowledge He also makes the claim that architecture was treated as an extremely serious and important area of intellectual enquiry the result of which was that by the turn of the eighteenth century architects and architectural writers could count themselves amongst England's intellectual and cultural elite

Architecture, Liberty and Civic Order Carroll William Westfall, 2016-03-09 This book brings to light central topics that are neglected in current histories and theories of architecture and urbanism These include the role of imitation in earlier centuries and its potential role in present practice the necessary relationship between architecture urbanism and the rural districts and their counterpart in the civil order that builds and uses what is built The narrative traces two models for the practice of architecture One follows the ancient model in which the architect renders his service to serve the interests of others it survives and is dominant in modernism The other first formulated in the fifteenth century by Leon Battista Alberti has the architect use his talent in coordination with others to contribute to the common good of a republican civil order that seeks to protect its own liberty and that of its citizens Palladio practiced this way and so did Thomas Jefferson when he founded a uniquely American architecture the counterpart to the nation s founding This narrative gives particular emphasis to the contrasting developments in architecture on the opposite sides of the English Channel The book presents the value for clients and architects today and in the future of drawing on history and tradition It stresses the importance indeed the urgency of restoring traditional practices so that we can build just beautiful and sustainable cities and rural districts that will once again assist citizens in living not only abundantly but also well as they pursue their happiness
