Health Care In Big Cities:

Health Care in World Cities Michael K. Gusmano, Victor G. Rodwin, Daniel Weisz, 2010-06-01 New York London Paris
Although these cities have similar sociodemographic characteristics including income inequalities and ethnic diversity they have vastly different health systems and services This book compares the three and considers lessons that can be applied to current and future debates about urban health care Highlighting the importance of a national policy for city health systems the authors use well established indicators and comparable data sources to shed light on urban health policy and practice Their detailed comparison of the three city health systems and the national policy regimes in which they function provides information about access to health care in the developed world s largest cities The authors first review the current literature on comparative analysis of health systems and offer a brief overview of the public health infrastructure in each city Later chapters illustrate how timely and appropriate disease prevention primary care and specialty health care services can help cities control such problems as premature mortality and heart disease In providing empirical comparisons of access to care in these three health systems the authors refute inaccurate claims about health care outside of the United States

Subcommittee on Executive Reorganization,1969 Examines organization financing and delivery of health care and the roles of Federal government and the public in health care management and use Health Care Reform Around the World Andrew Twaddle,2002-06-30 Health care reforms around the world from Europe and North America to Africa Latin America and Asia seem to all be market oriented reforms driven by international business interests and right wing political parties There seems to be a sudden and broad concern with the efficiency of medical care with the assertion that democratically or professionally run systems are inherently inefficient Far less concern is evident for the more traditional values held regarding medical care effectiveness or quality and equity The fact is that we have little good cross national research that systematically addresses the reform issue This book addresses that problem and attempts to look at health care reforms in a number of countries representing as wide a spectrum as possible and using a common conceptual framework that allows for comparable information to be gathered and presented on each despite differing levels of socio economic development The authors agreed on a set of models that were thought to provide reasonable guidance in answering the questions of the source of pressures for reform the alternative modes of organization that have been found in the world in recent years and the direction of change among those alternatives
