Health Financing in the Developing World Guy Carrin, 2011 A collection of peer reviewed articles and contributions to books this overview of the finance of health insurance concentrates on developing countries The material covers various financing strategies and explains how each can or cannot help improve the transition toward universal coverage The model plans shown here are particularly useful for policy makers and technical advisers who have to decide upon health financing policies or are engaged in a debate about them and the sample forms can be adjusted to the particular economic and political context of the developing countries involved In addition there are reminders that this process varies in some countries universal coverage may take time and require a step by step approach In other developing countries a swift transition to universal coverage may be quite feasible

Good Practices in Health Financing Pablo Enrique Gottret, George Schieber, Hugh Waters, 2008-01-01 This volume focuses on nine countries that have completed or are well along in the process of carrying out major health financing reforms These countries have significantly expanded their people's health care coverage or maintained such coverage after prolonged political or economic shocks e.g following the collapse of the Soviet Union In doing so this report seeks to expand the evidence base on good performance in health financing reforms in low and middle income countries The countries chosen for the study were Chile Colombia Costa Rica Estonia the Kyrgyz Republic Sri Lanka Thailand Tunisia and Vietnam

Health Financing in Indonesia, 2009-01-01 In 2004 the Indonesian government made a commitment to provide its entire population with health insurance coverage through a mandatory public health insurance scheme It has moved boldly already provides coverage to an estimated 76.4 million poor and near poor funded through the public budget Nevertheless over half the population still lacks health insurance coverage and the full fiscal impacts of the government's program for the poor have not been fully assessed or felt In addition significant deficiencies in the efficiency and equity of the current health system unless addressed will exacerbate cost pressures and could preclude the effective implementation of universal coverage Ue and the desired result of improvements in population health outcomes and financial protection For Indonesia to achieve UC systems performance must be improved and key policy choices with respect to the configuration of the health financing system must be made Indonesia's health system performs well with respect to some health outcomes and financial protection but there is potential for significant improvement High level political decisions are necessary on key elements of the health financing reform package The key transitional questions to get there include the benefits that can be afforded and their impacts on health outcomes and financial protection how the more than 50 percent of those currently without coverage will be insured how to pay medical care providers to assure access efficiency and quality developing a streamlined and efficient administrative structure how to address the current supply constraints to assure availability of promised services how to raise revenues to finance the system including the program for the poor as well as currently uninsured groups that may require government subsidization such as the more than 60 million informal sector workers the 85 percent of workers in firms of less than five employees and the 70 percent of the population living in rural areas

The Impact of Health Insurance in Low- and Middle-Income Countries

Maria-Luisa Escobar, Charles C. Griffin, R. Paul Shaw, 2011-01-01 Over the past twenty years many low and middle income countries have experimented with health insurance options While their plans have varied widely in scale and ambition their goals are the same to make health services more affordable through the use of public subsidies while also moving care providers partially or fully into competitive markets Colombia embarked in 1993 on a fifteen year effort to cover its entire population with insurance in combination with greater freedom to choose among providers A decade later Mexico followed suit with a program tailored to its federal system Several African nations have introduced new programs in the past decade and many are testing options for reform For the past twenty years Eastern Europe has been shifting from government run care to insurance based competitive systems and both China and India have experimental programs to expand coverage These nations are betting that insurance based health care financing can increase the accessibility of services increase providers productivity and change the population s health care use patterns mirroring the development of health systems in most OECD countries Until now however we have known little about the actual effects of these dramatic policy changes Understanding the impact of health insurance based care is key to the public policy debate of whether to extend insurance to low income populations and if so how to do it or to serve them through other means Using recent household data this book presents evidence of the impact of insurance programs in China Colombia Costa Rica Ghana Indonesia Namibia and Peru The contributors also discuss potential design improvements that could increase impact They provide innovative insights on improving the evaluation of health insurance reforms and on building a robust knowledge base to guide policy as other countries tackle the health insurance challenge
