Assessment and Planning in Health Programs Bonni C. Hodges,Donna M. Videto,2010-08-25 Assessment and Planning in Health Programs Second Edition enables students and practitioners to successfully plan implement and evaluate programs and interventions that will assist individuals and groups in maintaining and improving their health. Written in an accessible manner, this comprehensive text provides an overview of needs assessment, program planning, and program evaluation, and explains several goals and strategies for each. It addresses the importance and use of theories, data collection strategies, and key terminology in the field of health education and health promotion. The Practice of Health Program Evaluation David Grembowski, 2001-04-13 As more and more money is spent developing programs and services to solve health problems, how can one know if a specific health program works or what it would take to improve it? Aimed at addressing this issue, The Practice of Health Program Evaluation provides readers with the methods to evaluate health programs and the expertise to navigate the political terrain so as to work more effectively with decision makers and other groups. To convey these principles, Grembowski uses the metaphor of evaluation being a three act play with a variety of actors and interest groups, each having a role that involves entering and exiting the stage at different points in the evaluation process.

Handbook of Program Evaluation for Social Work and Health Professionals Michael J. Smith, 2010-01-21 Evaluation is crucial for determining the effectiveness of social programs and interventions. In this nuts and bolts handbook, social work and health care professionals are shown how evaluations should be done, taking the intimidation and guesswork out of this essential task. Current perspectives in social work and health practice, such as the strengths perspective, consumer empowerment, empowerment evaluation, and evidence based practice, are linked to evaluation concepts throughout the book to emphasize their importance. This book makes evaluation come alive with comprehensive examples of each different type of evaluation, such as a strengths based needs assessment in a local community, a needs assessment for Child Health Plus programs, comprehensive program descriptions of HIV services and community services for the aged, a model for goals and objectives in programs for people with mental illness, a monitoring study of private practice social work, and process evaluations of a Medicare advocacy program and a health advocacy program to explain advance directives. Equal emphasis is given to both quantitative and qualitative data analysis, with real examples that make statistics and concepts in qualitative analysis un-intimidating. By integrating both evaluation and research methods, and assuming no previous knowledge of research, this book makes an excellent reference for professionals working in social work and health settings who are now being called upon to conduct or supervise program evaluation, and may need a refresher on research methods. With a pragmatic approach that includes survey design, data collection methods, sampling, analysis, and report writing, it is also an excellent text or classroom resource for students new to the field of program evaluation.

recommendations to inform evaluation planning and implementation The goal is to increase the use of evaluation data for continuous program improvement Agency wide These are recommendations and not mandates because our programs vary so much in purpose funding and history It is expected that the leadership of Centers Divisions and large programs will seriously and systematically consider which of these guidelines and recommendations are most important to improve evaluation capacity and the quality of program evaluations in their own organizations Why are these guidelines and recommendations needed Although program evaluation has always been a respected component of public health practice the ability to conduct meaningful program evaluations has been constrained by wide differences in expertise resources of programs and commitment to evaluation Unfortunately as the accountability environment has intensified at all levels of government public health programs often find themselves unable to make a persuasive case for the efficacy and effectiveness of their programs Likewise in an environment of scarce resources we need more and better information about which interventions and approaches of the many options open to us are best suited to the problem Strong program evaluation can help us identify our best investments as well as determine how to establish and sustain them as optimal practice While the emphasis is on CDC practice most of these recommendations when implemented will improve the ways in which partners grantees and community based organizations evaluate and improve their program efforts as well
