Health Wellbeing And Older People:

Emotion Regulation and Mental Health in Older Adults Gary Christopher, David Facal, 2023-04-20 Active and Healthy Aging and Quality of Life: Interventions and Outlook for the Future, volume II Shekhar Chauhan, Petra Heidler, David Jean Simon, 2024-09-10 The continuous growth of older populations as a consequence of demographic changes is a huge global challenge. The growing proportion of older adults not only burdens the healthcare system specifically in developing countries but also posits a challenge at the household level specifically in nuclear and one person households. For societies as a whole to avoid costly and negative effects it is crucial to increase their knowledge of how to promote good health among older adults so that they can live longer and enjoy a better quality of life. Active aging is the process of optimizing opportunities for health participation and security in order to enhance quality of life as people age. An active and healthy life has remained one of the most important aspirations for all people both young and older adults alike. This ambition has become a genuine possibility for many due to a rising life expectancy among people of diverse attributes across the world. While celebrating longer life and more financial security in later life than ever before we need to challenge how these aspirations can be sustained through our own behavioral responses and through public policy, institutional reforms and innovations. The challenge is to identify, recommend and promote strategies and interventions that stimulate and sustain the activity, independence and health of people of all ages especially older adults and in the process promote the well being and quality of life of people and make public welfare systems more sustainable.

Nursing for Wellness in Older Adults Carol A. Miller, 2009 Now in its Fifth Edition this text provides a comprehensive and wellness oriented approach to the theory and practice of gerontologic nursing. Organized around the author's unique functional consequences theory of gerontologic nursing, the book explores normal age related changes and risk factors that often interfere with optimal health and functioning to effectively identify and teach health promotion interventions. The author provides research based background information and a variety of practical assessment and intervention strategies for use in every clinical setting. Highlights of this edition include expanded coverage of evidence based practice, more first person stories, new chapters and clinical tools such as assessment tools recommended by the Hartford Institute of Geriatric Nursing.

Mobile e-Health Hannah R. Marston, Shannon Freeman, Charles Musselwhite, 2017-12-01 This multi disciplinary collection of essays captures discussion, thinking and research surrounding the recent surge of interest in how technology can help us as we age. A wide range of topics are covered from investigations in the use of technology to improve health and well being to examinations of digital gaming, mobile health apps and the quantified self in relation to an ageing population. From multi disciplinary perspectives this collection highlights the role of a more social approach to technology. As such a variety of social research methods are used throughout the chapters. The benefits and issues with different approaches are highlighted both in terms of further research but also so the reader can judge the value of the research for themselves. This collection brings together the latest
