an increased life expectancy does not necessarily mean a healthy life In most high income countries more than 20% of those years are lived in ill health due to chronic conditions caused by non communicable diseases which compromises functional ability and well being key components of healthy aging In this way not only people s lives but also societal structures are being affected Based on the life course approach to healthy aging aging starts from conception In this regard the promotion of healthy aging requires preventive strategies that enhance capacities during growth and development maintain them for as long as possible after maturity and slow down their rate of decline Moreover considering healthy aging across the lifespan entails focusing on different factors life opportunities and choices that might significantly influence health status lifestyle as well as health and social inequalities in older age and challenges the focus of most research on the topic which exclusively investigates the effect of influences operating in the later stages of life

Metabolic Diseases and Healthy Aging: Prevention and Public Health Policy Based on Risk Factors Yun Gao ,Xiao Tan,Xiaohan Tanner Zhang, 2024-11-06

Healthy aging is defined as the process of developing and maintaining the functional ability that enables well being in older age. As population aging accelerates rapidly worldwide, healthy aging has become a major public health challenge. However, in later life, several metabolic diseases such as diabetes and hypertension and their complications, cardiovascular and renal diseases, et al, impose significant barriers to healthy aging. These conditions are influenced by various metabolic risk factors such as smoking, high calorie diet, and obesity. Moreover, these risk factors can also affect the aging process itself by disrupting the balance of metabolic regulation in the body. Therefore, understanding the complex interactions between aging and metabolic diseases is essential for improving public health outcomes in older populations. This Research Topic aims to explore the links between metabolic risk factors, chronic and metabolic diseases, and healthy aging. We wish to unveil evidence on how to prevent, treat, and manage metabolic risk factors and diseases in older adults in order to offer recommendations for future research and policy interventions toward healthy aging and public health. Geriatrics,
