Smart Food for Healthy, Sustainable and Resilient Food Systems, 2023-06-06

We are no longer able to provide the world population with a healthy diet and at the same time sustainably balance our planetary resources to ensure resilient and viable livelihoods for smallholder farmers For the past fifty years, diets have become less nutritionally balanced, contribute significantly to climate change, and have accelerated the process of biodiversity erosion We have reduced the number of species that are cultivated for food, and for each species we are growing fewer varieties While agriculture has moved towards uniformity, biodiversity is the basis of healthy and nutritious diets, and biodiversity is paramount for adapting crops to climate change Hence, it is important to build resilient and sustainable food systems by re-introducing diversity into our agricultural systems and introducing Smart Food from smart crops into our diets Smart Food is food that fulfills the criteria for being good for you, nutritious and healthy, good for the planet, environmentally sustainable, and beneficial to the farmers who grow these crops, resilient and viable The aim of this Research Topic is to provide researchers, research managers, funding agencies, and government agencies with scientifically backed information to foster awareness, increased use, and support for research into Smart Food

Day-Care for Healthy Child Development and Wider Social and Economic Gain in Urban Areas in Low- and Middle Income Countries Helen Elsey, Patricia

Kitsao-Wekulo, Robert C. Hughes, Margaret Nampijja, Paula Griffiths, Shagoofa Rakhshanda, George Evans Owino, 2024-06-26 Rapid urbanization in low and middle income countries (LMICs) has triggered a childcare crisis As families move to the city, they leave behind extended family and traditional support networks, parents and guardians, particularly mothers, are working long hours outside the home, often in informal and unstable jobs In response to the increasing demand, a range of informal, private, and NGO providers have sprung up to provide day and sometimes night care Governments are struggling to respond, and the care for children in the early years frequently falls between ministries The combination of these factors in LMIC cities has left children from low income families with substandard childcare, which poses a threat to their immediate and long-term health and development
