Intoxicating Manchuria Norman Smith, 2012-10-03 In China both opium and alcohol were used for centuries in the pursuit of health and leisure while simultaneously linked to personal and social decline The impact of these substances is undeniable and the role they have played in Chinese social cultural and economic history is extremely complex In Intoxicating Manchuria Norman Smith reveals how warlord rule Japanese occupation and political conflict affected local intoxicant industries These industries flourished throughout the early twentieth century even as a vigorous anti intoxicant movement raged Through the lens of popular Chinese media depictions of alcohol and opium Smith analyzes how intoxicants and addiction were understood in this society the role the Japanese occupation of Manchuria played in their portrayal and the efforts made to reduce opium and alcohol consumption This is the first English language book length study to focus on alcohol use in modern China and the first dealing with intoxicant restrictions in the region Puer Tea Jinghong

Zhang, 2013-12-01 Puer tea has been grown for centuries in the Six Great Tea Mountains of Yunnan Province and in imperial China it was a prized commodity traded to Tibet by horse or mule caravan via the so called Tea Horse Road and presented as tribute to the emperor in Beijing In the 1990s as the tea s noble lineage and unique process of aging and fermentation were rediscovered it achieved cult status both in China and internationally The tea became a favorite among urban connoisseurs who analyzed it in language comparable to that used in wine appreciation and paid skyrocketing prices In 2007 however local events and the international economic crisis caused the Puer market to collapse Puer Tea traces the rise climax and crash of this phenomenon With ethnographic attention to the spaces in which Puer tea is harvested processed traded and consumed anthropologist Jinghong Zhang constructs a vivid account of the transformation of a cottage handicraft into a major industry with predictable risks and unexpected consequences Watch the associated videos at <https://archive.org/details/PUERTEADVD1>

Privatizing China Li Zhang, Aihwa Ong, 2015-07-22 Everyday life in China is increasingly shaped by a novel mix of neoliberal and socialist elements of individual choices and state objectives This combination of self determination and socialism from afar has incited profound changes in the ways individuals think and act in different spheres of society Covering a vast range of daily life from homeowner organizations and the users of Internet cafes to self directed professionals and informed consumers the essays in Privatizing China create a compelling picture of the burgeoning awareness of self governing within the postsocialist context The introduction by Aihwa Ong and Li Zhang presents assemblage as a concept for studying China as a unique postsocialist society created through interactions with global forms The authors conduct their ethnographic fieldwork in a spectrum of domains family community real estate business taxation politics labor health professions religion and consumption that are infiltrated by new techniques of the self and yet also regulated by broader socialist norms Privatizing China gives readers a grounded fine grained intimacy with the variety and complexity of everyday conduct in China s turbulent transformation All the Tea in China Kit Boey Chow, Ione

Promoting Healthy and Supportive Acoustic Environments: Going beyond the Quietness Francesco Aletta,Jian Kang,2020-11-04 This book gathers 14 original contributions published in an IJERPH Special Issue that deal with the perception of environmental sounds and how such sounds are likely to affect human quality of life and well being and the experience of a place The research focus over the years has been gradually shifting from treating sound simply as noise and something that cities should get rid of to a potential resource to promote and support community life in public spaces Three main topics or needs to be addressed by researchers and practitioners emerged from this Special Issue 1 the need to re think quietness in cities as something that goes beyond the mere pursuit of silence 2 the need to integrate additional contextual factors in the characterization and management of urban acoustic environments for public health and 3 the need to consider the acoustic quality of indoor spaces as opposed to an outdoor only perspective The contributions collected in this book will hopefully trigger new questions and inform the agenda of future researchers and practitioners in the environmental acoustics domain

Local, Traditional and Indigenous Food Systems in the 21st Century to Combat Obesity, Undernutrition and Climate Change, 2nd edition Rebecca Kanter,Sofia Boza,Gina Kennedy,2023-07-31 Traditional and indigenous food systems have existed for centuries and were in balance with local food supplies globally However between the mid 20th and early 21st century the green revolution dramatically altered food production which in turn affected the inclusivity of traditional production systems within food systems and subsequently traditional dietary intakes This change was accompanied by lifestyle changes and spurred a global nutrition transition Today the world faces a global syndemic of obesity undernutrition and climate change A new call to action to create food systems that nourish people and sustain the planet is needed Traditional and indigenous food systems have long been recognized as systems that can both support good human nutrition as well as maintain a balance with nature There is an underutilized knowledge base around traditional and indigenous food systems This includes the knowledge of nutritious species traditional culinary preparations and cultural practices Greater agricultural production of underutilized species can result in more sustainable agricultural and food systems which can also help improve livelihoods and food security Traditional and indigenous cultural practices with respect to both land and water management as well as culinary practices contribute to both sustainable food production and consumption These practices require a greater evidence base in order to be incorporated into public health nutrition initiatives related to improving dietary quality such as food based dietary guidelines for example An increased focus on the importance of local traditional and indigenous food systems and nutrition could therefore help countries to improve human nutrition and ideally help mitigate the global syndemic of obesity undernutrition and climate change This Research Topic will focus on documenting diverse local food systems and promoting elements within them that can help improve nutrition and health both human and planetary in various ways including the livelihood development of knowledge holders

Moral Foods Angela Ki Che Leung, Melissa L. Caldwell, 2019-10-31 Moral Foods The Construction of Nutrition and Health in Modern Asia investigates how foods came to be established as moral entities how moral food regimes reveal emerging systems of knowledge and enforcement and how these developments have contributed to new Asian nutritional knowledge regimes The collection s focus on cross cultural and transhistorical comparisons across Asia brings into view a broad spectrum of modern Asia that extends from East Asia Southeast Asia to South Asia as well as into global communities of Western knowledge practice and power outside Asia The first section Good Foods focuses on how food norms and rules have been established in modern Asia Ideas about good foods and good bodies shift at different moments in some cases privileging local foods and knowledge systems and in other cases privileging foreign foods and knowledge systems The second section Bad Foods focuses on what makes foods bad and even dangerous Bad foods are not simply unpleasant or undesirable for aesthetic or sensory reasons but they can hinder the stability and development of persons and societies Bad foods are symbolically polluting as in the case of foreign foods that threaten not only traditional foods but also the stability and strength of the nation and its people The third section Moral Foods focuses on how themes of good versus bad are embedded in projects to make modern persons subjects and states with specific attention to the ambiguities and malleability of foods and health The malleability of moral foods provides unique opportunities for understanding Asian societies dynamic position within larger global flows connections and disconnections Collectively the chapters raise intriguing questions about how foods and the bodies that consume them have been valued politically economically culturally and morally and about how those values originated and evolved Consumers in modern Asia are not simply eating to satisfy personal desires or physiological needs but they are also conscripted into national and global statemaking projects through acts of ingestion Eating then has become about fortifying both the person and the nation
