European Proverbs Gyula Paczolay, 1997      European Proverbs in 55 Languages with Equivalents in Arabic, Persian, Sanskrit, Chinese and Japanese Gyula Paczolay, 2017-05-19 The publication of European Proverbs must be considered a major event in paremiographical research and the book most certainly belongs in every research library of the world and on the shelf of any scholar interested in the comparative study of proverbs. It is a standard reference work on the very day of its appearance and it will serve generations of scholars and students as the work on the most common proverbs known throughout Europe. The Hungarian scholar Gyula Paczolay and his classical European Proverbs are a major milestone in the historical development of paremiography while at the same time setting new scholarly standards for future paremiographical work. After years of work by Gyula Paczolay it is now possible to see at one glance that 'There is no smoke without fire' no. 1 is the most widely distributed proverb in Europe. For this proverb Paczolay lists texts from 54 of the 55 languages represented in this book. The only language missing is Georgian. As is the case with the other entries, Paczolay starts with a general English lemma for this proverb: 'There is no smoke without some fire'. This is followed by variants and a short semantic explanation of the basic proverb in English. Then comes the impressive list of foreign language texts in alphabetical order of the individual languages but starting with the early Latin version. Where possible, dates of first occurrence are cited and precise bibliographical information is included for each text. Even two Esperanto texts are cited at the end of this rich documentation. That is followed by Oriental equivalents from the Arabic, Persian, Sanskrit, Uigur, Chinese and Japanese languages. A summary of the various historical dates, the language not represented and detailed bibliographical information concludes this inclusive presentation of the most common European proverb. This superb pattern of documentation is repeated for the other proverbs.      European Proverbs in 55 Languages with Equivalents in Arabic, Persian, Sanskrit, Chinese and Japanese Gyula Paczolay, 1930-04-01 The publication of European Proverbs must be considered a major event in paremiographical research and the book most certainly belongs in every research library of the world and on the shelf of any scholar interested in the comparative study of proverbs. Dobrovol'skij, Elisabeth Piirainen, 2021-11-08 The book develops a Theory of the Figurative Lexicon Units of the figurative lexicon conventional figurative units CFUs for short differ from all other elements of the language in two points Firstly they are conventionalized That is they are elements of the mental lexicon in contrast to freely created figurative expressions Secondly they consist of two conceptual levels they can be interpreted at the level of their literal reading and at the level of their figurative meaning which both can be activated simultaneously New insights into the Theory of Figurative Lexicon relate on the one hand to the metaphor theory Over time it became increasingly clear that the Conceptual Metaphor Theory in the sense of Lakoff can only partly explain the conventional figurativeness On the other hand it became clear that intertextuality plays a far greater role in the CFUs of Western cultures than previously assumed The book's main target audience will be linguists researchers in phraseology paremiology and metaphor and cultural studies The data and explanations of the idioms will provide a welcome textbook in courses on linguistics culture history phraseology research and phraseodidactics The ^AOxford Handbook of American Folklore and Folklife Studies Simon J.
