Frieden, Barry Eichengreen, 2010-05-18 As European integration has deepened and become more invasive the tension between the authority of the European Union and the autonomy of member states has increased while dissatisfaction with the political institutions of the European Union has increased dramatically How fast and how far European integration will proceed are critical issues for scholars and policymakers in Europe and the United States Barry Eichengreen and Jeffry Frieden have assembled a group of prominent economists and political scientists to discuss the most important and most difficult political and economic issues involved in European integration The book focuses on three major issues economic and monetary union the reform and development of responsive political institutions for the Union and the enlargement of the Union to include states to the east In examining these issues the writers consider such problems as the trade off between the benefits of international economic cooperation and the ability to pursue domestic welfare policies how to increase the political accountability of the institutions of the EU and how the EU can both be enlarged in membership and deepened in terms of the powers given community institutions The contributors are Steven Arndt Peter Bofinger Christian de Boisseu Michele Fratianni Geoffrey Garrett Jurgen von Hagen Ander Todal Jenssen Ken Kletzer Lisa Martin Jonathan Moses Jean Pisani Ferry and Michael Wallerstein in addition to the editors Barry Eichengreen is Professor of Economics University of California Berkeley Jeffry Frieden is Professor of Government Harvard University The Return To Europe NA NA, 2016-04-30 The Return to Europe examines the ability of the Central and South east European economies to withstand competitive pressures on entry to the EU These economies are still experiencing major structural problems inherited from communism A major gap still exists between the income levels and economic structures of the accession states and the existing members of the EU Trade relations largely involve the exchange of labour intensive goods produced in Eastern Europe for technology intensive goods produced in the EU The export structures of some Central European economies which have attracted foreign direct investment is improving Romania and Bulgaria have become increasingly dependent on export of labour intensive goods since the collapse of communism Will this create a permanent division of labour in an enlarged EU in which some regions of Europe fail to attract investment and become dependent on the export of low wage goods with implications for European security Enlarging the EU Eastward Heather Grabbe, Kirsty Hughes, 1998-05-05 Successful eastward enlargement of the EU will be critical to ensuring stability and prosperity for post Cold War Europe But enlargement raises difficult issues for the EU and the applicant countries of central and eastern Europe Is the EU capable of reforming its institutions and policies to cope with 25 or more members Which central and east Europeans will join and when How can we ensure that enlargement brings the economic and security benefits expected of it This comprehensive study examines in detail the political economic and security implications of eastward enlargement for both East and West The authors present new analyses of the policy issues including the EU budget and pre accession strategy and of the economic integration likely before and after accession Based on an extensive series of interviews with key ministers diplomats policy makers academics and journalists across Europe this study also provides an informed overview of expectations and attitudes towards enlargement within the EU and in the applicant countries Subregional Economic Cooperation in Central and Eastern Europe Martin Dangerfield,2001-01-26

Transition in Eastern Europe Herbert Wilkens,Wolfgang Maennig,2016 This publication contains a selection of papers presented at a conference discussing fundamental issues in the economics of transition aspects of liberalization privatization stabilization and the experience of selected countries The sessions lead to a number of hypotheses There is a need to analyze historical and economic aspects of phases of relative success of the socialist system of central planning Next to the important role of distribution of personal incomes and wealth for the success of the transformation process the question of optimal change of personal income and wealth distribution during the process of transformation has to be raised In assessing the costs and benefits of reform policies any methodological approach should take into account an intertemporal perspective How much does the EU continue protectionism against countries which will not become its members in the near future The role of the institutional environment shall not be neglected when analyzing the process of transition financial markets e g are of great relevance for sound development An early status of independence for the central bank from public finance obligations appears to help to eliminate the monetary overhang A quick almost instant liberalization strategy countries of Central and Eastern Europe seems to be more successful than gradual liberalization Russia Ukraine Belarus along with interventionism of trade policy InhaltsverzeichnisInhalt B Huber F L Sell Introduction U Blum Greed and Grief in East Germany the Socialist System s Crisis Collapse and Transformation K D Schmidt Transition in Eastern Europe The Integration of Goods and Factor Markets into the World Economy B van Aarle Currency Substitution and Currency Controls the Polish Big Bang of 1990 N Budina S van Wijnbergen Debt Management and Inflation Stabilization in Bulgaria C Fuest B Huber Government Deficits Inflation and Economic Transition J Br cker B Raffelh schen Fiscal aspects of German unification Who is stuck with the bill A Rusek Transition to Markets in CEFTA Countries A Comparative Overview D Gros A Gonciarz Stabilization and Economic Reform in Russia Ukraine and Belarus      Transformation of Economy as a Real Process Daniel Daianu,2018-12-07 First published in 1998 this volume is a contribution to the economic analysis of post communist transformation in an evolutionary institutionalist approach The author shows convincingly the role of path dependency of the ways history matters for the success of otherwise sound policies and highlights structural hindrances to fast and successful transformation Thence emerges the key concept of strain The book addresses the question of how to create conditions for sustainable development in societies where these are lacking and stresses the importance of institutional change It also emphasises the role of sound banking institutions and proper regulations the crucial issue of financial vulnerability and fragility the role of reputation means to fight non payments limit to optimal policies etc The author covers a broad international literature and relates it to his insights as a local observer which delivers an interesting reading

Fragmentation Sven W. Arndt, Henryk Kierzkowski, 2001-02-08 Fragmentation is a term used in this volume to describe cross border component specialization and production sharing Examination of recent trade data suggests that offshore sourcing of parts and components as well as offshore assembly are assuming an increasing role in the world economy The theoretical implications of this type of specialization are examined in several chapters with the aid of both Ricardian and Heckscher Ohlin trade models Production is first decomposed fragmented into its constituent parts and activities and then it is at this level that factor intensities and technologies are calibrated The implications of intra product specialization and component trade are investigated under conditions of free restricted and preferential trade The role of multinationals is explored and the importance of cross border service links among component activities is examined Overall extension of the principle of comparative advantage beyond products to the realm of parts and components is welfare enhancing Industries take advantage of offshore sourcing in order to reduce costs and increase competitiveness Component specialization offers new and additional opportunities for the exploitation of scale economies Across a broad range of conditions it raises output and employment Its effects on wages are spelled out Trade between advanced high wage and developing low wage countries is an obvious candidate for the two way application of component specialization The empirical part of the volume presents an evaluation of new data which allow the separation of trade in components and in final products It also provides assessments of the role of component specialization in the trade of several countries and regions In addition to their relevance for trade theorists and country specialists the studies collected in this volume have interesting implications for the conduct of trade policy They contradict claims that trade with low wage countries must be welfare reducing and they suggest new approaches to industrialization and economic development

Sharing, 1997 Trade and Jobs in Europe Mathias Dewatripont, André Sapir, Khalid Sekkat, 1999 In the last 25 years Europe has experienced a reduction in growth and an explosion in unemployment At a time when this and the continuing existence of the welfare state are top of the European agenda it has become increasingly popular to blame the globalization of the world economy for current problems This book provides the first comprehensive set of studies on the impact of trade with developing countries on the European labour market It argues that the evidence does not point to trade with developing countries as a major cause of European unemployment Instead technological change and domestic policy choices are the main causal factors As a result the contributors argue against protectionist trade policies whose benefits to employment would be limited at best but whose risk to world growth due to trade wars is immense The next ten years are a critical period for European integration and expansion Trade and Jobs in Europe will be of crucial importance to all those at the heart of the current debate advisers policy makers and researchers alike
