production textuality distribution and reception Myles McNutt identifies how the expansion of where television is produced has intersected with the kinds of places represented on television and how shifts in the production distribution and consumption of television content have shifted the burden of representing cities and countries both locally and internationally Through a combination of industry interviews textual analysis and in depth consideration of industry and audience discourse the book argues that where television takes place matters more today than it ever has but that the current system of spatial capital remains constrained by traditional industry logics that limit the depth of engagement with place identity even as the expectation of authenticity grows significantly Representing a cross section of media industry studies television studies and cultural geography this book will appeal to scholars and students within multiple areas of media studies including production studies and audience studies in addition to television studies broadly
