European Public Administration and Informatization , 1992 Public Administration in an Information Age I. Th. M. Snellen, Wim B. H. J. van de Donk, 1998 This book is a joint effort of researchers who have been involved in research projects and programmes that have been trying to chart and reflect upon the implications of Information and Communication Technologies ICTs for Public Administration Tilburg Rotterdam Kassel Irvine Nottingham Glasgow Since the fifties computers had largely facilitated and the transformation of the minimal Night Watch state into the modern Welfare state through their contribution to their effectivity productivity and efficiency In most Handbooks of Public Administration computers are seen as neutral instruments and most of the time the role of computer technologies in the transformation of public administration is completely neglected This deafening silence is a great contrast with the way ICT s are actually changing public administration The faster the developments in a field of study are the more difficult it is to let the theories related to that field of study mature In such circumstances most statements will remain provisional and context dependent 25 years of research in Irvine California and Kassel Germany and more than 10 years of research in Tilburg Rotterdam The Netherlands and about seven years of research in Glasgow Nottingham the United Kingdom nonetheless enables the presentation of a modest image of public administration as it is entering the information age Researchers in each of these groups have nevertheless not stopped trying to phrase theories about the implications of informatization for public administration with a more or less large scope that are robust in different contexts and over longer periods of time These results and theories covering a broad set of elements of the body of knowledge of public administration are presented in this volume As the authors try to demonstrate in this book informatization developments in public administration do not only challenge the existing body of knowledge of the public administration discipline but they are also opening up new perspectives and paradigms for the study of public administration Information Technology in Government Helen Margetts, 2012-10-12 This book situates information technology at the centre of public policy and management IT is now a vital part of any government organisation opening new policy windows and enabling a vast range of tasks to be carried out faster and more efficiently But it has also introduced new problems and challenges Four in depth case studies demonstrate how information systems have become inextricably linked with the core tasks of governmental organisations The key government departments examined are the Inland Revenue Service and Social Security Administration in the UK the Inland Revenue and Benefits Agency in the UK European Public Administration & Informatization , Printbegr nsninger Der kan printes kapitelvis The European Union Democratic Deficit and the Public Sphere David Ward, 2002 An assessment of EU communications policy

Orwell in Athens Wim B. H. J. van de Donk, I. Th. M. Snellen, P. W. Tops, 1995 Informatization is playing an increasingly important role in democratic politics For some time already various applications of Information and Communication Technologies ICT are more or less successfully used by politicians representative bodies political parties and citizens It is however reasonable to believe that informatization will be of paramount interest for existing actors and institutions that are involved in public decision making in a democracy The advent of telecommunication infrastructures that will enable the use of all kinds of interactive facilities is considered to be an important step towards a more participative democratic system Many projects that share a common feature have been set up their ambition to renew democratic decision making structures and practises with the help of ICT Most of these projects can be found at the level of local and or regional government In this book the claim that these projects can reform or strengthen democratic politics is explored and discussed both empirically and theoretically The research that is presented in this book makes clear that as far as the role of informatization regarding the functioning of the democratic polity is concerned it appears that informatization represents both opportunities and threats

Governing Networks Ari Salminen, 2003 Annotation The EGPA Yearbook provides an overall view of current scientific discussion concerning networks particularly the governing of networks in European public administration More than 30 presentations by researchers and practitioners of public administration in different European countries guarantee that the wide range of topics related to network governance information technology and also to other special issues of administrative and managerial reforms related to the subject is fully covered The Yearbook deals with two main topics centred on governing and developing networks In the first part issues are related to different interpretations of networks involved in social policy reforms administration citizen relationships reforming governance models public private relations also including health care local governance and professional policy networks In the second part networks are discussed from the perspective of information technology Among several presentations the authors analyse challenges and applications of new technology in public administration ICT networks in social networks and also reforms and improvements of new technology The accent is on how IT is bringing new patterns into the public administration of different countries The Yearbook demonstrates that a discussion of networks is a rather new and fresh way of thinking about the role of public sector authorities in society reforms of hierarchical structures in public agencies and e governance applications at all levels of
