Law Collection: v. 1a. Historical texts and materials on human rights, pt. 1, 1999 The National versus the Foreigner in South America Diego Acosta, 2018-05-24 Since the turn of the century, South American governments and regional organisations have adopted the world's most open discourse on migration and citizenship. At a time when restrictive choices were becoming increasingly predominant around the world, South American policymakers presented their discourse as being both an innovative and exceptional new paradigm and part of a morally superior avant-garde path in policymaking. This book provides a critical examination of the South American legal framework through a historical and comparative analysis. Diego Acosta uses this analysis to assess whether the laws are truly innovative and exceptional as well as evaluating their feasibility, strengths and weaknesses. By analysing the legal construction of the national and the foreigner in ten South American countries during the last two centuries, he demonstrates how different citizenship and migration laws have functioned as well as showing why states have opted for certain regulation choices and the consequence of these choices for state and nation building in the continent. An invaluable insight for anyone interested in global migration and citizenship discussions.

Plausible Crime Stories Orna Alyagon Darr, 2018-11-29 Plausible Crime Stories is not only the first in-depth study of the history of sex offences in Mandate Palestine, but it also pioneers an approach to the historical study of criminal law and proof that focuses on plausibility. Doctrinal rules of evidence only partially explain which crime stories make sense while others fail to convince. Since plausibility is predicated on commonly held systems of belief, it not only provides a key to the meanings individual social players ascribe to the law but also yields insight into communal perceptions of the legal system, self-identity, the essence of normality and deviance, and notions of gender, morality, nationality, ethnicity, age, religion, and other cultural institutions. Using archival materials including documents relating to 147 criminal court cases, this socio-legal study of plausibility opens a window onto a broad societal view of past beliefs, dispositions, mentalities, tensions, emotions, boundaries and hierarchies. Proving Discriminatory Violence at the European Court of Human Rights Jasmina

Mačkić, 2018-07-10 In Proving Discriminatory Violence at the European Court of Human Rights Jasmina Ma ki unveils the evidentiary issues faced by the European Court of Human Rights when dealing with cases of discriminatory violence In that context she evaluates the Court s application of the standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt and aims to answer the question whether that standard forms an obstacle in establishing the occurrence of discriminatory violence In addition she offers an assessment into the circumstances in which the burden of proof may shift from the applicant to the respondent state The author also looks at the types of evidentiary materials that may be used by the Court in order to establish discriminatory violence
