Commission. Library, 1972 Evaluating Welfare and Training Programs Charles F. Manski, Irwin Garfinkel, 1992 Almost everyone would like to see the enactment of sound practical measures to help disadvantaged people get off welfare and find jobs at decent wages and over the past quarter century federal and state governments have struggled to develop just such programs How do we know whether they are having the hoped for effect How do we know whether these vast outlays of money are helping the people they are designed to reach All welfare and training programs have been subject to professional evaluations including social experiments and demonstrations designed to test new ideas This book reviews what we have discovered from past assessments and suggests how welfare and training programs should be planned for the 1990s The authors of this volume each a recognized expert in the evaluation of social programs do more than summarize what we have learned so far They clarify why the issue of the proper conduct and interpretation of evaluations has itself been a subject of continuing controversy In part the problem is organizational requiring the integrated efforts of social scientists public officials and the professionals who execute evaluations In addition there is a dispute about scientific method should evaluators try to understand the complex social processes that make programs succeed or fail or should they focus on inputs and outputs treating the programs themselves as black boxes whose machinery remains hidden Evaluating Welfare and Training Programs will be important for policy researchers and evaluation professionals social scientists concerned with evaluation methods public officials working in social policy and students of public policy economics and social work The
