Jacobs,1988 El-Hi Textbooks in Print ,1984 Books in Print ,1991 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1997 House Price Methodology Marko Hannonen, This booklet discusses some major methodological issues relating to the construction of house price models on a macro level There is no single method that always produces the optimal results the choice of a particular approach method theory model and technique is context dependent This is especially true in housing markets where a multitude of different submarkets exist The methodology chosen should be based on sound theory from which the basic concepts of analysis can be derived This booklet discusses the use of potential models which can be constructed using a general field theory and which act as a theoretical foundation for further analysis If we use potential models for house price analysis we can discover additional features from the data set that other approaches would simply miss This e book presents a pragmatic overview of key methodological concerns with the emphasis on the use of potential models Theoretical methodological questions are left unanswered and are not even presented in this text since they have little relevancy to real world modelling questions
