Creating a Learning Society Joseph E. Stiglitz, Bruce C. Greenwald, 2014-06-03 It has long been recognized that most standard of living increases are associated with advances in technology not the accumulation of capital Yet it has also become clear that what truly separates developed from less developed countries is not just a gap in resources or output but a gap in knowledge In fact the pace at which developing countries grow is largely determined by the pace at which they close that gap Therefore how countries learn and become more productive is key to understanding how they grow and develop especially over the long term In Creating a Learning Society Joseph E Stiglitz and Bruce C Greenwald spell out the implications of this insight for both economic theory and policy Taking as a starting point Kenneth J Arrow's 1962 paper Learning by Doing they explain why the production of knowledge differs from that of other goods and why market economies alone are typically not efficient in the production and transmission of knowledge Closing knowledge gaps or helping laggards learn is central to growth and development Combining technical economic analysis with accessible prose Stiglitz and Greenwald provide new models of endogenous growth upending the received thinking about global policy and trade regimes They show how well designed government trade and industrial policies can help create a learning society explain how poorly designed intellectual property regimes can retard learning demonstrate how virtually every government policy has effects both positive and negative on learning and they argue that policymakers need to be cognizant of these effects They provocatively show why many standard policy prescriptions especially associated with neoliberal doctrines focusing on static resource allocations impede learning and explain why free trade may lead to stagnation while broad based industrial protection and exchange rate interventions may bring benefits not just to the industrial sector but to the entire economy The volume concludes with brief commentaries from Philippe Aghion and Michael Woodford as well as from Nobel Laureates Kenneth Arrow and Robert Solow

Democratic Discipline in Learning Communities Clifford H. Edwards, 2011-01-16 This book describes in detail the attributes of learning communities and how these characteristics help students acquire a sense of moral responsibility and commitment to fellow students Clifford H Edwards provides an account of how schools fail to satisfy student needs and thus promote discipline problems Special attention is given to children's need for self direction and how empowering them can promote more responsible learning involvement There is also a focus on the factors that motivate learning and those that do not and how teachers can help their students become more intrinsically interested in school learning Constructivist learning theory is presented as the most accepted explanation of how children learn and how it articulates with the learning community approach to education The inquiry learning strategy is given as the most effective way to apply constructivist learning theory in classrooms Appropriate relationships and effective communications are presented as essential components of learning communities and how they accentuate the effectiveness of this learning orientation Democratic discipline within learning communities is described in detail

The Learning Society: Challenges and Trends Richard Edwards, Peter Raggatt, Nick Small, 2013-12-16 The learning society is not a new idea although its popularity has grown in recent years with the suggestion that lifelong learning is a condition for economic competitiveness in a global economy replacing the earlier conception of it as a condition for democratic citizenship This reader designed to accompany Module E827 of the MA in Education critically examines the demographic technological economic and cultural challenges which have led to interest in the idea of a learning society and explores their policy and practical implications for lifelong learning It also explores and evaluates trends in education and training which support the development of a learning society Overall the book provides readers with a range of opinions on the learning society within which broad context they can place their own practice

Democracy, Lifelong Learning and the Learning Society Peter Jarvis, 2008-06-10 This is a book with a difference it produces a completely new perspective on lifelong learning and the learning society and locates them within humanity itself Five themes run through this book Humankind has always been aware of the imperfections of human society as a consequence it has looked back to a mythological past and forward to a utopian future that might be religious political economic or even educational to find something better Lifelong learning as we currently see it is like two sides of the same coin we learn in order to be workers who produce and learn we have a need to consume We then devour the commodities we have produced whilst others take the profits One of the greatest paradoxes of the human condition has been the place of the individual in the group community or conversely how the groups allow the individual to exist rather than stifle individuality Modernity is flawed and the type of society that we currently have which we in the West call a learning society is in need of an ethical overhaul in this late modern age There is a need to bring a different perspective both political and ethical on lifelong learning and the learning society in order to try to understand what the good society and the good life might become In Democracy Lifelong Learning and the Learning Society the third volume of his trilogy on lifelong learning Professor Jarvis expertly addresses the issues that arise from the vision of the learning society The book concludes that since human beings continue to learn so the learning society must be a process within the incomplete project of humanity All three books in the trilogy will be essential reading for students in education HRD and teaching and learning generally in addition to academics and informed practitioners The Lifelong Learning and the Learning Society Trilogy Volume 1 Towards a Comprehensive Theory of Human Learning Volume 2 Globalisation Lifelong Learning and the Learning Society Volume 3 Democracy Lifelong Learning and the Learning Society Peter Jarvis is an internationally renowned expert in the field of adult learning and continuing education He is Professor of Continuing Education at the University of Surrey UK and honorary Adjunct Professor in Adult Education at the University of Georgia USA

Overcoming Inequalities in Schools and Learning Communities: Innovative Education for a New Century Rocio

Garcia-Carrion, Roseli Rodrigues De Mello, Arnetha F. Ball, 2020-03-24 Educational inequalities have strongly impacted disadvantaged and underserved populations such as indigenous Roma migrant children students with disabilities and those affected by poverty A wide array of research has contributed to explaining the mechanisms and effects of inequalities in the achievement patterns dropout rates disengagement in the school experiences of children and youth traditionally excluded Research also suggests the negative consequences for child development including cognitive language and social emotional functioning of poverty and lack of quality education in the early years. Consequently, the current unequal access to optimal learning environments for every single child to succeed in education and to have a better life perpetuates the exclusion and neglects the right to education for those minorities. This Research Topic aims at moving beyond causes and shed light upon effective solutions by providing successful pathways for integration and inclusion of the learners most heavily affected. Scholars worldwide are looking for successful actions with children, youth, and communities of learners historically underserved to overcome educational and social exclusion. These transformative approaches go beyond the deficit thinking and are grounded in theories, empirical evidence, and multidisciplinary interventions oriented towards achieving social impact, which refers to the extent to which those actions have contributed to improve a societal challenge. The international network of Schools as Learning Communities is advancing knowledge on deepening and expanding the impact of what has been defined as Successful Educational Actions (SEAs), that is, those interventions that improve students' achievement and social cohesion and inclusion in many diverse contexts regardless of the socioeconomic, national, and cultural environment of schools. Drawing on the evidence generated by this network of researchers to address the global challenge of inequality by studying educational actions oriented towards achieving social impact and potentially transferrable to other contexts, this Research Topic aims at deepening on this approach. In short, our purpose is that the contributions included in this Research Topic contribute to reduce educational and social inequalities and especially benefit those populations most in need.

Demystifying Professional Learning Communities Kristine Kiefer Hipp, Jane Bumpers Huffman, 2010-02-16. The purpose of this book is to clearly define an approach to school improvement that uses professional learning community (PLC) practices to achieve school improvement and success for every student. This book offers information, examples, and case studies to clarify the concept of a PLC to respond to critical issues in schools and to support educational leaders in addressing the important mandates of accountability and school improvement. As school leaders proactively lead efforts to create learning communities, their schools, districts, and staff will incorporate knowledge, skills, and practices that focus on teaching and learning for all. The authors' findings will assist leaders, change agents, policy makers, and university faculty in guiding schools toward creating and maintaining PLCs as they sustain school improvement for student learning. Developing Learning Communities
