This Death by Drowning William Kloefkorn, 2001-02-01 The first volume in William Kloefkorn's four-part memoir, which when completed will cover the four elements: water, fire, earth, and air. This Death by Drowning is a memoir with a difference: an artfully assembled collection of reminiscences, each having something to do with water. The book's epigraph from Norman Maclean's A River Runs Through It proclaims, "I am haunted by waters." So, and in most rewarding ways, is William Kloefkorn. The first chapter recalls the time when, at age six, the author came within one gulp of drowning in a Kansas cow pasture pond, only to be saved by his father. A later chapter recounts Kloefkorn's younger brother's near death by drowning a few years later. Still another envisions the cycle of drought and torrential rains on his grandparents' Kansas farm. There are fanciful memories of the Loup and other Nebraska rivers interlaced with Mark Twain's renderings of the Mississippi and John Neihardt's poetic descriptions of the Missouri. And there are stories of more recent times: a winter spent in a cabin on the Platte River and an often amusing Caribbean cruise that Kloefkorn took with his wife. Throughout, Kloefkorn takes his memories for a walk, following each recollection into unexpected, fruitful byways. Along the way, he pauses at larger themes of nature, death, family, and renewal that gradually gather irresistible force and authority. Death in the Sahara Michael Asher, 2008-05-17 Desert explorer Michael Asher investigates the most disastrous exploration mission in the history of the Sahara. In 1880, the French government ordered a surveying expedition for a railway that would bring the fabulous wealth of Timbuktu in French Sudan to Paris. This trek should have heralded a new era of French prosperity. Instead, it was a deadly fiasco. Under-armed in hostile territory and foolishly employing the enemy as guides, the one hundred men of the expedition were ambushed and stranded without camels or supplies in the deserts of southern Algeria. Many were killed outright, and for four months the survivors were menaced by the Tuareg, the lords of the desert, robbed, starved, and tricked into eating poisoned fruit. To escape, the men hid in the wastelands of the Sahara with little hope of finding food or water. They were finally forced to eat their own dead, or worse: the merely weak. Only a dozen malnourished men lived to tell their tale. The story of their 1,000-mile journey is one of the most astonishing narratives of survival ever recorded. With a superb grip of narrative and uncanny ability to evoke battle scenes, The Guardian Michael Asher has written an amazing true story that is as dramatic as it is frightening. Don Kulick,2019-06-18 Perhaps the finest and most profound account of ethnographic fieldwork and discovery that has ever entered the anthropological literature The Wall Street Journal If you want to experience a profoundly different culture without the exhausting travel to say nothing of the cost this is an excellent choice The Washington Post As a young anthropologist Don Kulick went to the tiny village of Gapun in New Guinea to document the death of the native language Tayap He arrived knowing that you can t study a language without understanding the daily lives of the people who speak it how they talk to their children how they argue how they gossip how they joke Over the course of thirty years he returned again and again to document Tayap before it disappeared entirely and he found himself inexorably drawn into their world and implicated in their destiny Kulick wanted to tell the story of Gapuners one that went beyond the particulars and uses of their language that took full stock of their vanishing culture This book takes us inside the village as he came to know it revealing what it is like to live in a difficult to get to village of two hundred people carved out like a cleft in the middle of a tropical rainforest But A Death in the Rainforest is also an illuminating look at the impact of Western culture on the farthest reaches of the globe and the story of why this anthropologist realized finally that he had to give up his study of this language and this village An engaging deeply perceptive and brilliant interrogation of what it means to study a culture A Death in the Rainforest takes readers into a world that endures in the face of massive changes one that is on the verge of disappearing forever
