The Five Stages of Culture Shock Paul Pedersen, 1994-12-12 The educational literature suggests that international contact contributes to a comprehensive educational experience The Five Stages of Culture Shock examines an international shipboard educational program and seeks to identify specific insights resulting from informal extracurricular contact between students and host nationals in the context of culture shock experiences Using the critical incident methodology Pedersen analyzes students responses to nearly 300 specific incidents which resulted in insights that apply to the students own development as well as the sociocultural context of the host countries This use of critical incidents shows one way to evaluate and assess the subjective experiences of the informal curriculum More broadly the analysis sheds light on the concept of culture shock as a psychological construct

End Of Knowing Fred Newman, Lois Holzman, 2006-04-10 First published in 1997 This volume discusses the notion of whether there is a limit to knowledge and One Way to Know in addition to the suggestion that that we no longer need to know and whether our continued employment of knowing cognition epistemology is useful or useless and destructive of human life and development

Unscientific Psychology Fred Newman, Lois Holzman, 2006 Philosopher and psychotherapist Fred Newman and developmental psychologist Lois Holzman challenge psychology's understandings of what a human being is, what mental illness is, and how people develop and learn. They show how these understandings were created, marketed, and sold to the American public. Going beyond critique, the authors argue that instead of psychology, what people the world over need is a cultural performatory approach to human life. Unscientific Psychology is based on the authors' twenty-five year practice of creating such an approach and the network of therapeutic and educational projects that have been built with it. Unscientific Psychology is at once a narrative of the history of philosophy, modern science, and psychology and a critique of psychology's methodology. Arguing that psychology is a pseudoscientific hoax, the authors deconstruct three of its most powerful myths: the myth of the individual, the myth of mental illness, and the myth of development. They tell the story of how these myths were constructed out of age-old philosophical abstractions to create a world and a discourse of psychological objects. Newman and Holzman invite readers to think in new ways about our lives and the world around us. Like similar books that make discoveries in the social sciences accessible and exciting to an educated audience, Unscientific Psychology taps into the desire of readers who are eager to learn what's on the cutting edge of scientific and cultural change. Counselling in a

Multicultural Society Stephen Palmer, Pittu D. Laungani, 1998-12-10 The book aptly describes, explores, and hits the core of very complex issues around race, racism, culture, difference, dual identity, stereotypes, immigration, and alienation. It is also very thought-provoking, raising questions about one's own ability to work more flexibly in the consulting room with clients of different backgrounds. It is excellent for a directory of resources useful for training purposes and an enabling role model for good practice in counselling in a multicultural society. I enjoyed it. It should be a required handbook on the shelf of every caring professional working within a multicultural environment or setting. Transformations The PCSR Journal This book examines the many complex issues surrounding counselling and therapy in a multicultural society. It aims to sensitize readers to the cultural and racial setting in which counselling occurs and to raise awareness of the specific counselling needs of those from differing backgrounds. The book explores the impact of culture on identity and of cultural differences on interaction. It looks at how one might take a client's cultural context into consideration or deal with racism and provides a sophisticated account of the salient value systems of Western and non-Western cultures. Contributors also challenge the suitability of a client-centred approach for clients from non-Western backgrounds and explore the possibilities for transcultural, culture-centred, and multimodal models of counselling in the West. Worlds of Common Sense Pauline Pepinsky, 1994-09-21 This book explores the construction and maintenance of alternative worlds of common sense. Employing a comparative approach, Dr Pepinsky monitors events in Norway and the United States over several decades, treating these countries as prototypes of societies that are classifiable as modern Western democracies but which exhibit marked contrasts in size and cultural homogeneity She examines the conditions under which different social realities are generated the assumptions that they presuppose and the practices that sustain them She then goes on to analyze the methods by which continuity is maintained and the grounds upon which changes are legitimized over time Pepinsky directs her book at an interdisciplinary audience She addresses problems of increasing concern in the social sciences and in the world at large Cultural differences in modal perspective affect the formulation of public policies and also contribute to intergroup tensions as interpersonal relations are simultaneously becoming intercultural encounters within many contemporary societies Researchers and students in social and cross cultural psychology ethnography sociology and political science will find this work of considerable interest that the current diagnostic model of the mental health establishment is too entwined with political and economic factors to represent a valid method for healing psychological problems The predominant model is too linear reductionist normative and based upon an abnormal view of behavior Exacerbating this problem is our highly accelerated present day lifestyle in which new processes and interactions are constantly emerging The postmodern self is evolving into a manipulative situational self with no authentic core values Quantum psychology is a psychology of consciousness and experience and is reflective of the entire process of being It is a holistic dynamic and synergistic model designed to augment the classical model It involves non linear as well as linear models of description with non linearity having an association with intuitive and irrational thought Quantum psychology also attempts to describe the complex reciprocal relationship that exists among consciousness community and culture In part it is culture that forms our consciousness and consciousness that modifies our culture with community being the vehicle by which these transactions take place Quantum psychology represents an emergent system of understanding a consciousness that has been exposed to the complex and accelerating effects of a postmodern culture
