development Digital Collaborative Learning in General, Higher, and Business Education Henrik Bellhäuser, Sanna Järvelä, Rene Roepke, Christin Siegfried, Carolyn Rose, 2025-04-10 Please note that all spontaneous submissions are required to submit an abstract and await feedback before submitting the full manuscript any spontaneous submissions which only submit a full manuscript will be rejected Collaborative learning takes place with the expectation that people will achieve more together than alone Crucial to this is the appropriate composition of groups and the participation of each group member through communication written verbal or non verbal by sharing ideas experiences and knowledge in a diverse and elaborate way However collaboration is extended and substantially changed by the Internet and other technologies The always on connection to the Internet enables people to be in contact with peers anytime and anywhere and can help to overcome social isolation which is particularly common in digital learning contexts not least because it can positively influence learner satisfaction The ability to record speech and writing in a digital context encourages reflection on one's own contributions before they are made available to the group Moreover digital applications and methods can support the externalization of one's own thinking and learning processes to the group members AI helps to investigate how collaborative learning works e.g. through data driven methods of learning analytics ECRM 2018 17th European Conference on Research Methods in Business and Management Prof. Michela Marchiori, 2018-07-12 These proceedings represent the work of researchers participating in the 17th European Conference on Research Methodology for Business and Management Studies ECRM which is being hosted this year by Universit Roma TRE Rome Italy on 12-13 July 2018 Research Handbook on Transport and COVID-19 Junyi Zhang, Ying Jiang, Yoshitsugu Hayashi, 2025-05-14 Drawing on interdisciplinary studies from a wide range of countries and contexts this timely Research Handbook provides a comprehensive overview of the impacts of COVID-19 while envisioning a promising future through resilient frameworks and innovative solutions This book offers essential guidance for navigating the complexities of transportation in the post pandemic era Advances in Artificial Intelligence Balázs Kégl, Guy Lapalme, 2005-05-03 The 18th conference of the Canadian Society for the Computational Study of Intelligence CSCI continued the success of its predecessors This set of papers reflects the diversity of the Canadian AI community and its international partners AI 2005 attracted 135 high quality submissions 64 from Canada and 71 from around the world Of these eight were written in French All submitted papers were thoroughly reviewed by at least three members of the Program Committee A total of 30 contributions accepted as long papers and 19 as short papers are included in this volume We invited three distinguished researchers to give talks about their current research interests Eric Brill from Microsoft Research Craig Boutilier from the University of Toronto and Henry Krautz from the University of Washington The organization of such a successful conference benefited from the collaboration of many individuals Foremost we would like to express our appreciation to the Program Committee members and external referees who provided timely and significant reviews To manage the submission and reviewing process we used the Paperdyne system which was developed by Dirk

Structural Change in Transportation and Communications in the Knowledge Society Kiyoshi Kobayashi, T. R. Lakshmanan, William Peter Anderson, 2006-12-21 The transformation of the world economy from a system of nations trading materials intensive goods to a system of seamless global networks for information intensive goods and services has created the need for a comprehensive restructuring of transportation and communications activities. The contributors, transportation and communications analysts from Japan and the United States, address this restructuring from a variety of perspectives ranging from theoretical treatments of the role of information in the economy to applications of communications technologies for the collection of travel data. The authors transcend traditional methods of transportation and communication analysis in order to address emerging issues that are not well represented by the prevailing cost-benefit framework. Many draw from advances in social sciences such as game theory that recognize the interdependence of human decision making. New ways of assessing the economic benefit of infrastructure and the evolving role of institutions in the information economy are demonstrated along with novel approaches to analyzing human mobility and interaction in a knowledge-rich environment. By moving beyond traditional forms of analysis that were better suited to an earlier time, the chapters in this book provide a wealth of insights for policy formulation in the globalized knowledge economy. This comprehensive volume will be of great value to regional scientists and economic geographers as well as civil engineers, economists, and analysts interested in transportation and communications.

The Polycentric Metropolis Peter Hall, Kathy Pain, 2012-06-25 A new 21st century urban phenomenon is emerging: the networked polycentric mega-city region. Developed around one or more cities of global status, it is characterized by a cluster of cities and towns, physically separate but intensively networked in a complex spatial division of labour. This book describes and analyses eight such regions in North West Europe. For the first time, this work shows how businesses interrelate and communicate in geographical space within each region, between them, and with the wider world. It goes on to demonstrate the profound consequences for spatial planning and regional development in Europe, and by implication, other similar urban regions of the world. The Polycentric Metropolis introduces the concept of a mega-city region, analyses its characteristics, examines the issues surrounding regional identities, and discusses policy ramifications and outcomes for infrastructure, transport systems, and regulation. Packed with high-quality maps, case study data, and written in a clear style by highly experienced authors, this will be an insightful and significant analysis suitable for professionals in urban planning and policy, environmental consultancies, business and investment communities, technical libraries, and students in urban studies, geography, economics, and town spatial planning.
